GENERAL MENTION.

The Howard Atheneum company of specialty performers appeared at Hyde & Behman's Theater last night before a large audience in a programme of unusual merit. The company is one of the best of its kind that has been seen here, and an evening at the Adams street house may therefore be profitably spent. Hamlin and Keeler, in songs and dances; Miss May Maccabe, an accomplished vocalist and graceful dancer; the musical team, Fields and Hanson; E. H. Doyle, Irish vocalist; Harrington and Johnson, comedians; Miss Lizzie Simms, in dances of all nations; Miss Hilda Thomas, songstress, and the two Macs, acrobatic singers and dancers, make up the array of performers, the entertainment concluding with the amusing farce of "That Bad Boy," with Mr. Frank Hanson as the title character.

The Vienna vocalists, Herren Salzer and Sternheim, were listened to by a numerous gathering in Zipp's Casino last evening. These gentlemen are gifted with excellent voices and sing with artistic taste and intelligent expression. Miss Annie Schober supplemented the orchestral selections of the Conterno band with several well sung ballads.

The upper portions of the Novelty Theater were crowded last evening on the occasion of the bringing forward of Tony Denier's reconstructed pantomime, "Humpty Dumpty in the West." An extensive specialty olio is shown between the acts of the pantomime, in which a number of really clever performers take part.

"Only a Woman's Heart" was set out at the Lee avenue Academy yesterday in presence of a large gathering of appreciative spectators. The play is of the romantic-sensational order and of considerable interest. Its principal part was capably supported by Mr. Newton Beers.

In the Standard Museum yesterday the domestic drama entitled "The Two Wanderers" was brought out. Miss Clara Lloyd and Mr. William H. Rightmire, who bore the principal parts, found favor in the eyes of the audiences which filled the museum afternoon and evening, and the play itself was received with many marks of approval.

The fourth matinee of the Philharmonic series takes place in the Academy of Music to-morrow afternoon.

"Tannhaeuser" is the appointment for to-morrow night at the Metropolitan Opera House.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL.

STANDARD MUSEUM OPENING.

Ever since the assumption of the management of the Standard Museum by Mr. J. W. Holmes a ladies and children's reception has been a feature of the opening of each successive season. Yesterday afternoon this museum was crowded with little ones and their guardians, and at night the house was filled by an appreciative audience drawn from the general public. Many improvements have been effected in the auditorium of the museum during the Summer recess, and excellent taste has been shown in the matter of decorations and embellishments. A specialty entertainment afforded amusement to yesterday's onlookers, in which the sprightly Collins sisters sang and danced, the Branfords were beheld in Dutch sketches which were plentifully besprinkled with funny sayings and comic songs, the London comique, Harry Rogers, furnished a specimen of his versatility in topical ballads, the Lucier family illustrated their individual and collective capacity in a musical melange, Thomas and Watson, the prime Museum favorites, kept the audience in convulsions of laughter with one of their funny acts, and Professor Harry Campbell created wonderment with a remarkable series of illustrations designated "Tableaux Soliel." In Curiosity Hall a number of "living wonders" were on public view, all of whom were gazed at with eager interest, from the mountain of flesh weighing nearly 700 pounds, in the person of Miss Hannah Battersby, to the tiniest of midgets, in the person of Miss Minnie Scott, the "Nova Scotia queen." Next week the theatrical season begins at the Museum, Mr. N. S. Woods appearing on Monday and Tuesday in "The Boy Scout," on Wednesday and Thursday in "The Boy Detective" and on Friday and Saturday in "Nan the Newsboy."

BROOKLYN MUSEUM.

"One of the Bravest" was so greatly admired last week that on two occasions intending spectators were obliged to leave the lobby without being able to secure seats. To-morrow the Rightmire Double Dramatic and Specialty Company will open up a vista of joy and profit. "The Two Wanderers" is to be enacted by the dramatic portion of the Rightmire Double Dramatic and Specialty Company, and the specialty branch of The Rightmire Double Dramatic and Specialty Company will appear in an olio.

STANDARD MUSEUM.

"Bertha, the Sewing Girl" will this week experience the tortures that persistent virtue endures on the stage and in the New York Weekly, and will reap the reward of right doing in overthrowing the double dyed villyun and receiving the grateful acknowledgments of the audience. Some sewing machines will be drawn for by ticket holders.

THE FIFTH AVENUE CASINO.

The Fifth avenue Casino has passed under the hands of a new management and will be devoted hereafter to music, billiards and bowling instead of stage entertainments. Twenty pool tables have been placed in the huge building and sixteen bowling alleys have been opened. Music is furnished by a small orchestra every evening, when several bowling clubs, among them clubs of women, assemble for practice in the alleys.

THE ACTORS' FUND.

On Friday afternoon the Actors' Fund will have a benefit at the Brooklyn Academy of Music in which all the managers in the city will co-operate. Messrs. Sinn, Miner, Hamilton, Knowles, Morris, Bixby, Berger, Price, Holmes, Proctor and Randolph will cease to be rivals on that day and will do what they can to give a lift to needy actors. No people in the world come forward so readily in support of worthy charities as the players, and the public should respond to their many services in kind. Apart from the question of charity, the holders of tickets to the performance at the Academy on Friday will surely get their money's worth in pleasure.

MISS WELD'S CONCERT.

The second concert by Mr. Georgia Weld is to be given at Historical Hall on Tuesday night. Miss Weld is a courageous young lady, and she does rightly to make her concerts interesting] by the employment of good talent. Miss Settie Blume, the reader, will appear at her next entertainment, and among the singers will be Madame Julie De Ryther, whose performance at the preceding concert was received with great approval. An effort will also be made to secure M. Musin, the violinist, for one or two solos.

PARK THEATER.

E. H. Sothern, son of his father and heir to no little of his taste and skill—everybody will recall the elder Sothern and his Dundreary—is to be seen this week in his new play, "Lord Chumley," which is better and more consistent than "The Highest Bidder," in which he was put up for public favor last year. His personation of Chumley is neat and the story is entertaining. A company will support him that is composed of actors who appeared jointly with him during the long run of the piece at the Lyceum Theater.

BROOKLYN THEATER.

The well known sensational play "The Romany Rye" will be enacted this week by the same actors that presented it at Proctor's Theater. To-night Dodworth's band will give another concert at the theater, when Laura Lee, singer, the Martens, yodlers, and Master Clarence Worrall, cornetist, will also appear.

LEE AVENUE THEATER.

The genial "Joe" Emmet will irradiate the stage of this theater to-morrow night, playing, of course, his sempiternal "Fritz," for that is his one comedy and was made expressly for him. He will sing and warble and smile and gambol as cheerily as ever, and he will be surrounded by about the same actors that were with him last season.

CRITERION THEATER.

Charles T. Ellis will be seen this week in his quite familiar but generally acceptable dialect comedy, "Casper, the Yodler."

PROCTOR'S THEATER.

James H. Wallick will appear this week in two plays, "The Cattle King" and "The Bandit King," supported by four real horses, a donkey, a company and an arsenal.

STANDARD MUSEUM.

Edward Arnott is to make his appearance to-morrow in "Victims of Faro," which will probably carry a moral lesson with it. Some curiosities will be seen in the museum hall.

HYDE & BEHMAN'S THEATER.

The company engaged for the present week comprises Fields and Hanson, Burns and Donnelly, the Lentons, John Hart, Hayden and Hetherton, the Martens trio, Senator Frank Bell, Tierney and Wayne, the Vindoeys, Professor Hampton's dogs and Van Buren and Shaw.

ZIPP'S CASINO.

The performers engaged for the coming week include Kirchner's orchestra, Nellie Collins, the DeWolfe Sisters, Lottie M. Nob~~le, Amy Borch~~ert, Alice Eavens, H. Thomson and Minnie Schult. A concert will be given at the Casino to-night.

STANDARD MUSEUM.

W. H. Rightmire, an actor of quite sensational drama, will appear to-morrow in his play, "The Two Wanderers."

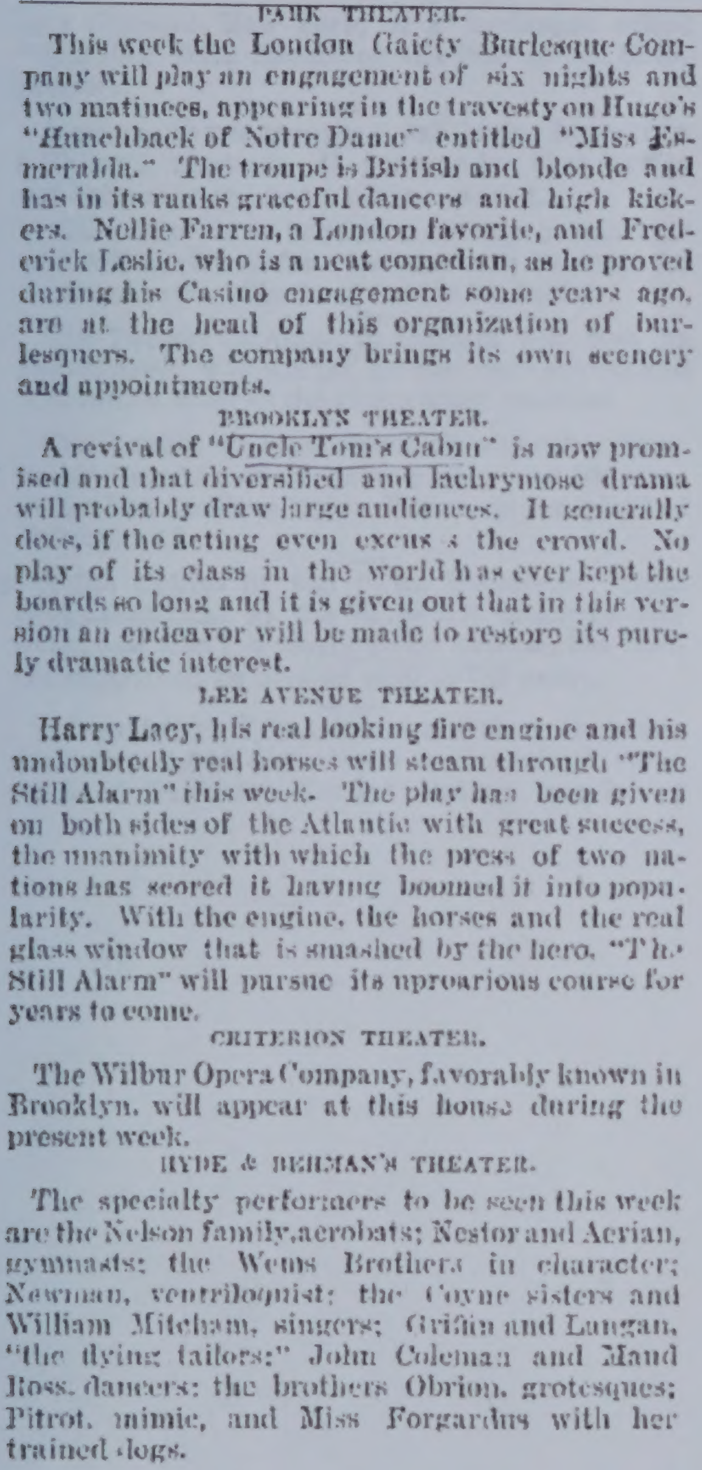
ZIPP'S CASINO.

Kirchner's orchestra will be assisted this week by Minnie Schult, by several instrumental soloists, Beatrice Hamilton and the Tally Ho Trio.

THE DAMROSCH RECITALS.

Walter Damrosch will give his eight lectures on Wagner's "Niebelungen Trilogy" in Historical Hall, at 4 o'clock, on the afternoons of January 31, February 6, 12, 27, March 4, 6, 11 and 14. He will take up the music in detail, playing some of it on the piano, translating the text, explaining the motives and their relation to the poem.

Publication: Brooklyn Eagle; Date:1889 Jan 20; Section:None; Page Number: 10



PARK THEATER.

This week the London Gaiety Burlesque Company will play an engagement of six nights and two matinees, appearing in the travesty on Hugo's "Hunchback of Notre Dame" entitled "Miss Esmeralda." The troupe is British and blonde and has in its ranks graceful dancers and high kickers. Nellie Farren, a London favorite, and Frederick Leslie, who is a neat comedian, as he proved during his Casino engagement some years ago, are at the head of this organization of burlesquers. The company brings its own scenery and appointments.

BROOKLYN THEATER.

A revival of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is now promised and that diversified and lachrymose drama will probably draw large audiences. It generally does, if the acting even excuses the crowd. No play of its class in the world has ever kept the boards so long and it is given out that in this version an endeavor will be made to restore its purely dramatic interest.

LEE AVENUE THEATER.

Harry Lacy, his real looking fire engine and his undoubtedly real horses will steam through "The Still Alarm" this week. The play has been given on both sides of the Atlantic with great success, the unanimity with which the press of two nations has scored it having boomed it into popularity. With the engine, the horses and the real glass window that is smashed by the hero, "The Still Alarm" will pursue its uproarious course for years to come.

CRITERION THEATER.

The Wilbur Opera Company, favorably known in Brooklyn, will appear at this house during the present week.

HYDE & BEHMAN'S THEATER.

The specialty performers to be seen this week are the Nelson family, acrobats; Nestor and Aerian, gymnasts; the Wems Brothers in character; Newman, ventriloquist; the Coyne sisters and William Mitcham, singers; Griffin and Lungan, "the flying tailors;" John Coleman and Maud Ross, dancers; the brothers Obrion, grotesques; Pitrot, mimic, and Miss Forgardus with her trained dogs.

ell's Olympic, New York, of a burlesque called "Sparring With Specie, or the War of the Shinplasters."

A man with two mouths is exhibiting himself in a Chicago museum. It is a wonder that he has not been engaged as an advance agent.

"Rosedale" is to become a "cheap attraction" and will be played for 10 cents, with 25 cents for reserved seats. Shade of Lester Wallack!

The Theater Comique, in Harlem, will give up the struggle to be a good theater next season and will resign itself to the cheap show business.

The benefit to Max Maretzek will take place, under direction of Managers Daly and Stanton, at the Metropolitan Opera House, on the night of February 12.

Nellie Collins of the "Two Wanderers" company, that was at the Standard Museum last week, and who is a clever little actress, has been the support of an invalid mother for years.

It is said that Evans, Hoey and their manager divided $52,000 last season as a result of forty weeks of "A Parlor Match." Yet we wonder at

THE CASINO

The usual varieties are afforded at Huber & Gebhardt's casino this week by Kirchner's orchestra of musicians; Minnie Schult, popular singer; Minnie Lee, popular singer; Estrella Sylvia, singer and dancer; Fred Morphet, magician and entertainer; Leonzo, juggler and balancer; Nellie Collins, singer and dancer; William P. Lowe~~, xylophone~~ player, and Theodore Hoch, cornetist.

NIBLO'S GARDEN.

An audience that packed the big auditorium last night attested the popularity, with the masses, of plays depicting local life. "Noah's Ark," the production offered for the first time, is a dramatic illustration of every day life in New York. The "ark" is an old pawnshop on Christie street and serves as an excuse for introducing specialty actors, singers and dancers. The play was weak and its plot flimsy, but there was excellent scenery, and the lifelike copies of familiar places, like the city hall park, five points and the roof garden of the Casino, were received with great approbation by the audience. The musical features included two brass bands and a fife and drum corps. Mr. Sigmund, who took the part of Noah, the keeper of the pawnshop, was the principal actor, and made his first appearance in English.

THEY HAD A GAY TIME.

Members and Friends of the Later On Social Spend a Pleasant Evening.

There was a very pleasant social gathering last night at the residence of Mr. Alfred Henry, 395 Tenth street. The occasion was the annual reception of the Later On social, and the members and friends, their sweethearts and sisters were all present to celebrate the joyous event. This organization is one of the best known and most popular of those that flourish in the Eighth and Twenty-second wards. The social derives its name from Hallen and Hart's popular play, and was organized three years ago with but a few members, while to-day it ranks among the most popular of its kind in its vicinity and has a large membership.

Those who look after its interests are Edward Ruhlman, president; Alfred Henry, vice president; George McMauns, secretary, and Fred Cresser, treasurer.

Last night's reception was the first of the season and the third given by the club. It equaled, if not surpassed, all previous undertakings and will serve to emphasize its popularity. The commodious parlors were filled to overflowing with a fashionable gathering, and all were kept in good humor by Professor Gould's orchestra, which was stationed in a corner of the room. The young men vied with each other in receiving their guests and making them feel at home, and succeeded admirably in furnishing excellent amusement for all and entertaining them in royal good style. The earlier part of the evening was spent in listening to a well arranged musical programme, and if applause is any criterion it must have been thoroughly enjoyed. Some of those who took part were John Foley, Edward Ruhlman, Frank Ruhlman, Miss Mary Ruhlman, Miss Nellie Collins, William Hammond, John MacGrail, J. Gleen, Joseph Brown and Wallace Owen.

At midnight an intermission was taken and the guests, headed by the president and his handsome partner, repaired to the diningroom, where an excellent collation was served and toasts responded to. The supper room was beautifully draped with the national flag and festoons of bunting. When all had partaken of a sumptuous repast the festivities were resumed, and it was not until South Brooklyn roosters began to crow this morning that the merrymakers reluctantly dispersed. Those in charge of the reception were E. Ruhlman, J. Jacques, E. McManus, Alfred Henry and Frederick Cresser.

The guests included Mr. Alfred Henry, Miss S. Van Mater, Mr. Edward Ruhlman, Miss Nellie

Collins, Mr. George MoManus, Miss Mamie Cassidy, Mr. Frederick Cresser, Miss Nellie Horan, Mr. John Patterson, Miss Henrietta Beebe, Mr. John Jacques, Miss A. Horan, Mr. E. Dear Sir;

His true middle initial was T. See Pension Civil War

I recently received the enclosed marriage registration. Nellie L. Gaylor's name was misprinted as Taylor as bride's parents. With the old flowery handwriting, this could easily happen. Will you be kind enough to recheck your records for correction to Gaylor.

Secondly, would you check Wm Collins middle initial. Nellie Fisher's death certificate gives it as Wm C. There , the C. could have been miscopied by the person writing the death certificate, or the marriage certificate. The death certificate gives the name Gaylor correctly. Dates and address are correct. ~~I believe William's middle name was Charles.~~

I would be most appreciative if you could provide a corrected marriage certificate.

Enclosed are samples of some old type lettering. Note the C that resembles a P.

Sincerely,

Jacqueline Humphrey

Probably Bklyn Daily Eagle

See old First Reformed Church 7th + Carroll St. Bklyn NY letter, of 1970, listing Nellie Collins, wife of Charles H. Baker, joining the church Oct 9 1898.
This seems to be the time that Charles + Nellie + son Homer Baker, born 1893, moved from Buffalo NY to Bklyn NY. to be near Nellie's parents, Nellie Louisa (Gaylord), (Collins), (Clarke) Caldwell.
Charles Baker was Treasurer of the Grand Opera House in Bklyn or Manhattan.
His career was shortlived because Charles died from Diabetes in 1903, July 30, before insulin was manufactured.

wrong. Seems to be mixed up dau. #26 Nellie L. Baker #22 Edith W Davidson, also dau. of Nellie L. Caldwell - see ages of daus. which proves Caldwell incorrect. Edith W. Davidson, pl of birth + that of parents inc Her par B. NYS

Nellie L Baker's place of birth + of parents correct

Chas H. Baker - place of birth of parents incorrect should be NYS ~~Irene~~ ~~Edith~~ # Clyde Davidson - mother's place of birth should be NYS probably.

Step Father to Ruth

Nellie (Collins)(Baker) Fisher

Nellie was older than what she claimed in 1930

I, Jackie went to live c̄ my grandmother Nellie about 1932/33.

Nellie died from cardiac problem in 1933.

Fisher didn't pay the taxes + lost the house after she died.

Ruth kicked me out of the house the day Nellie died. I was 7 yrs old & had to walk far + across busy Flatbush Ave. to get to rooming house where my mother lived.

Fisher lived upstairs, rented out the downstairs.

Note that Edith is actually two yrs younger than Nellie. Edith puts her age more closely to her actual age.

I need to re ck if I got answers in correct column.

I Remember Irving Stockwell - portly man. His mother was nee Gaylor sister to Nellie's mother Nellie.

I remember the lady lodger. She taught Sunday School.

Dear Sir,

My ancestor,Mary Baker was buried in Woodlawn Cemetery, death,January 16, 1905 in Yonkers.

I am seeking burial place of Charles A. Baker , her husband who reportedly died April 23, 1909 in Yonkers.

Would you be kind enough to check your records for these people. If not found, do you know if Yonkers had a Woodlawn Cem. at that time. Undertaker for Mary was Peter H. Harrington, signature difficult to read. Last name may be a bit different.

If Chas. record found , please include his vital statistics if you have them + others buried in plot. Room for any more in plot?

Thank you,

Jacqueline Humphrey

Special Correspondence of The Journal.

AMBOY, January 2.—On New Year's day the funeral obsequies of the late Mrs. Justus Townsend, of Lysander, were held from her late residence, at half past nine o'clock A. M. Solemn and impressive services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Bell, pastor of the Congregational church of Lysander, assisted by Rev. B. B. Dayton, of Amboy. Very many of the neighbors and friends were gathered to pay their last respects to the departed and to mingle their tears and sympathies with the bereaved family. Brief and appropriate services were held at the grave by Rev. B. B. Dayton, assisted by Rev. Mr. Bell.

The life of Mrs. T. deserves more than a passing notice, and is worthy of an obituary, from an abler pen than that of your correspondent. Hers was one of those characters made up of charity for all, with malice towards none, an even, quiet temperament, which to know was to love and admire, and which attracts all by whom it comes in contact. She was the youngest daughter of the late Elihu Peck, of Van Buren, born in 1816, and in early life married to Ira

Indian Agent Met History Head On

Scroll Honors John Philip Clum, Lifelong Friend of Apache Nations

BY DAN L. THRAPP, Times Religion Editor

The stirring Age of Geronimo and the OK Corral Battle seems infinitely removed from the Age of the Burning Question (i.e., whether the Dodgers will move to Los Angeles), but they are linked—in time—by the life of a gracious, smiling lady who lives here in retirement.

She is Mrs. John Philip Clum.

As a young woman of New York, back before World War I, she chanced, one day, to open the door to a Mr. Clum who had stopped by to call on her roommate.

The roommate wasn't in.

Died in 1932

And eventually Florence Baker and Clum were married. She had learned something of his remarkable history by that time, of course, but she learned a lot more before his death in 1932 at their Los Angeles home.

Clum, as a Dutch Reformed divinity student, had played in the first recorded intercollegiate football game, between Rutgers and Princeton, before ill-health cut his schooling short and led him west to Santa Fe. There he became an observer for the fledgling U.S. Weather Bureau.

Founded Newspaper

By the time he was 23 he had been named Indian agent at the San Carlos Apache reservation. For the next three decades he was rarely beyond the sound, sight or smell of violence. His trial led into the wild Dragoon Mountains, to Tombstone where he founded the Epitaph, a famous newspaper, and was Mayor during the hectic days when the Earps were handling police duties.

He wound up his frontier adventures with the Alaskan gold rush which closed out the turbulent 19th century, but he never forgot the countless friends, white and red, he had make during his pioneer career.

Mrs. Clum came along after this period was over, of course, but she learned of it firsthand from these acquaintances who never forgot John Clum.

Knew Wyatt Earp

There were veterans of the Apache Scouts Clum had organized, trained and led in pursuit of renegade Indians who persistently ravaged the Southwest, and there were the more durable of the gun fighters including Wyatt Earp himself, whom Mrs. Clum came to know quite well in the years before his death here in 1929.

In her quiet room at the Methodist-run Pacific Home at 1055 N Kingsley Drive, Mrs. Clum often thumbs the mementos of this period and muses about the vast changes that had come about during the lifetime of her husband.

A few months ago a motion picture biography of Clum, "Walk the Proud Land," was released, with Audie Murphy in the starring role.

Thinks Murphy Too Young

An uninformed critic back East complained that Murphy seemed far too young for the job of taming the unruly Apaches, although he added caustically that "anything is possible with the help of script writers."

"He didn't know that Audie Murphy today is almost 15 years older than my husband was when he assumed that tremendous job," laughed Mrs. Clum. "Another critic complained that while Mr. Clum was almost bald even at that age, Mr. Murphy has lots of hair.

"But I'll take Audie Murphy for the part, hair or no hair! He did a simply wonderful job!"

Noticed Hair

The Apaches, with the Indian penchant for observing interesting details, at the outset had dubbed Clum, Nantanbetunnykahyeh as soon as he took off his hat. Loosely translated it meant "the boss with the high forehead."

Clum's introduction to the Arizona Indian situation was rude and bloody.

A band of Apache scouts brought him a gunnysack out of which they rolled the head of a renegade who had long been wanted.

The former divinity student got a tight grip on his stomach and sought out the details, learning that this sort of trophy taking was common practice on the reservation under Army encouragement. He determined, as one of his first official actions, to put a stop to it.

Met With Opposition

In order to make his reform stick he had to move the Army back from the reservation so the Indians could handle their own affairs. This provoked much opposition, of course, from the military who were reluctant to release the Indians they controlled, and from the nearby whites who wanted the Army to remain. Soldier payrolls were as attractive then as now.

Clum discovered at once what many well-meaning Indian agents and officers also learned, that most of their headaches came not from the Indians but from savage and unruly whites.

He realized that to avoid white excesses against the Indians it was necessary to make sure that the Indians refrain from provocations.

HONORED BY APACHES—Mrs. John Philip Clum receives citation from Duncan White Eagle, president of Great Southwest Council, Society of Apaches, honoring the memory of her husband, onetime Indian agent and lifelong friend of Apaches.

To that end he organized the nation's first Indian police force.

Raided Still First

He began with four rugged individuals. Their first major job was a raid on a still, for it was forbidden to make or sell alcohol on the reservation (although previous agents had made a lucrative side line out of it).

His freshmen police force conducted themselvés well on this initial operation.

From that time forward, recruits were not lacking and the authority of the Indian police was unquestioned by other natives.

They were used often on dangerous missions, most having to do with the chasing down and capture of renegades, including Geronimo. These operations, far from the reservation, found increasing respect for the Indian police from white settlers.

Used as Model

After Geronimo was captured in New Mexico (he later went on the warpath again, long after Clum had left the Indian Service), the young agent's gendarme organization was used as a model for the formation of the U.S. Indian Police Force, with branches on all the large reservations.

Clum had also done much to make the Indians self-supporting, as the Apaches very largely are to this day, and helped in every way he could to make upstanding, integrated citizens of them. He took a party to Washington, D.C., and, to finance the trip, this group of "wild" Indians got up a vaudeville act and played theaters across the nation.

Proved Fine Actors

The Apaches proved to be fine actors, and enthusiastic about it, especially in the fighting scenes. Many an audience was thrilled — and some were frightened.

Although John Clum went on to other scenes, he never lost his affection for his Apaches, or his respect for them, and they always retained their high regard for him.

In 1881 Clum went to Tombstone, then a booming silver mine town in southeastern Arizona, and shortly became Mayor. He founded the newspaper that still exists there and later the first daily in Arizona, the Tucson Citizen.

One day at his Tombstone home he heard a little more shooting than usual and found that the Earps and Clantons had shot it out, with disastrous results for the latter faction. This incident, called the OK Corral "battle," has become the classic gunfight of the West, as well as the most controversial,

Baker Funeral Slated Here Tomorrow

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 3 p. m. in Gashes Creek Baptist Church for the Rev. James Millard Baker, 85, of the Charlotte Highway, retired missionary to India, author and teacher. He died yesterday morning in a hospital here.

The Rev. James Smith, the Rev. H. E. Benfield and the Rev. J. B. Grice will officiate and burial will be in Gashes Creek Cemetery.

Pallbearers will be B. K. Miller, Robert LaCasse, J. A. Innes, Burney Riddle, B. B. Barrett and Robert Puckeridge.

The body will lie in state at the church for half an hour preceding the service.

The family has requested that no flowers be sent.

Mr. Baker was author of the book, "Contending the Grade in India," published approximately five years ago. He was in India a total of 35 years, first serving as vice-principal and then as principal of the Junior College at Ongole, a town near the Bay of Bengal. He was later pastor of Ongole Mission Church.

Raised Funds For Hospital

He took an active interest in construction projects in India and is said to have managed the erection of some 30 buildings in that country. He raised funds for and built Clough Memorial Hospital in Ongole prior to his retirement from the mission field.

He and his wife, also a former mission worker in India, returned to the United States in 1929. They had previously visited most of the European and Asiatic nations.

Mr. Baker upon his return to this country made a tour of the nation, lecturing on social and economic conditions in India.

He was a personal friend of John D. Rockefeller Jr., who indirectly influenced him to move to Asheville.

Baker recalled that while he was in India he read of Rockefeller's gift through the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial of $5,000,000 for the establishment of Great Smoky Mountains National Park.

Native Of Syracuse

"I knew if Rockefeller liked the section, I would too," he remarked at the time.

A native of Syracuse, N. Y., Baker received his bachelor of arts and masters' degrees at the University of Rochester Theological Seminary.

He and his wife learned the Telugu language and worked closely with the more than 50 local castes at Ongole. Instruction in industrial work was stressed among the people.

He was a member of First Baptist Church in Asheville.

HINSDALE GENEALOGY.

DIRECT * 1. DEACON ROBERT HINSDALE^1, the emigrant and founder of the family in America, came to Dedham, Mass., probably from Dedham, County Essex, England, and was a proprietor of that town in 1637. He was made a member of the Board of Selectmen, July 18, 1637. His home was "on the Easternmost playne." On July 28, 1638, the town granted to him "six acres of meadowland besides the hill." He was one of the eight founders of Dedham first church, November 8, 1638. On March 13, 1639, he was admitted freeman of Massachusetts Colony. On May 17, 1639, he, with six others, was given "full power to contrive, execute and perform all the business and affairs of this, our whole town." On June 21, 1639, he, with four others, was given full power to apportion to each settler his share of meadowland, and the "townsmen say they will stand fully satisfied without complaining or disquiet howsoever the said men shall order their said parcels of meadow." On December 31, 1639, he and seven others were chosen "for the ordering of the town affairs" for one year and were given full power. On July 6, 1640, he was granted "one parcel of upland lying upon the backside of his furthermost parcel of meadow and betwixt the said meadow and one parcel of coarse meadow lying on the other side thereof." On September 28, 1640, he was deputed to measure land for Francis Chickering. On October 22, 1640, he and two others were deputed "to set out to John Allin, our Pastor 120 acres of upland for a farm." On December 29, 1640, he was chosen, with two others, surveyor of highways for the following year. On January 1, 1645, he, with others, signed the petition for a free school at Dedham to be supported by tax. They agreed to raise the sum of twenty pounds per annum in support of the school. This is supposed to have been the first school in this country supported in this manner.

On January 1, 1645, he was chosen one of the seven Selectmen for the following year. On February 4, 1645, he was granted five acres and three roods of woodland. The records show that he was a faithful attendant on town meetings, and he appears to have been a valuable and public-spirited member of the community.

In 1645, he was chosen a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts, the oldest military organization in this country, founded March 13, 1638, and which still proudly maintains its existence. Upon the rolls of its members are to be seen the names of men who in their day, through the entire history of Massachusetts, were foremost in peace and war, and who occupied the highest place in science, art and literature, and in social, political and military life. At no time could any but a distinguished citizen have become a member of this society. On November 14, 1649 he was appointed one of a committee of Dedham citizens to organize a new town which afterwards came to be Medfield, Mass. In 1651 the General Court of Massachusetts Colony incorporated the town, the 41st in the colony, and named it Medfield. Robert Hinsdale was chosen one of its first Board of Selectmen and served six years. He was among the first thirteen who took up houselots at Medfield, and his homestead there was on what is now North Street. The original well is still in use. He built his house in Medfield in 1652. In 1659 he "purchased a bell and brought it up for the use of the town." Soon after, the town granted him forty-six acres of land near what is now Collin's Mill. He built a mill there which was burned by the Indians in 1676. He was active in organizing the first Medfield church.

He had mortgaged his land in Medfield in 1656. On August 20, 1663, he and his wife Ann conveyed lands in Medfield to Jeremiah Tauke, citizen and clothworker of London, as security for the payment of certain sums. About 1667 he removed with his family to the Connecticut Valley, settling first at Hadley, Mass., where in 1672 he was released from military duty "on account of age and a sore leg." He was an original proprietor in the eight thousand acre grant made by the Dedham people at Deerfield, Mass., then known as Pocumtuck, where he drew by lot in 1671, lot 31, the present site of the Willard House. He and his four sons were inhabitants of Deerfield, November 13, 1673. He was there deacon of the first church and one of the principal and most active citizens. He and his son Samuel, Sampson Frary, John Farrington, and Samuel Daniel were the only men of the original thirty-two Dedham proprietors of Pocumtuck who became actual settlers of Deerfield. The others sold out their rights.

Deacon Robert Hinsdale and his three sons, Samuel, Barnabas and John, were slain in the ever memorable fight with the Indians at Muddy (afterwards called Bloody) Brook, near Deerfield, where from ambush some seven hundred Indians under King Philip attacked and killed nearly every one of the little band of whites, led by Captain Thomas Lathrop, about one hundred in number, September 18, 1675. By this slaughter eight women of Deerfield were made widows, one, the wife of the Captain, and four, the wives of Robert and his three sons. All the slain were "buried in one dreadful grave." A corner-stone of a marble monument, twenty-six feet in height, was laid in memory of the slain, September 30, 1835, on which occasion the Hon. Edward Everett delivered an impressive discourse, found among his published orations. The monument was completed in August, 1838. The following is the inscription upon the tablet of the Monument:

"On this ground, Capt. Thomas Lathrop and eighty men under his command, including eighteen teamsters from Deerfield, conveying stores from that town to Hadley, were ambushed by about seven hundred Indians and the Captain and seventy-six men slain, September 18th, 1675. (Old style.)"

The inventory of Robert Hinsdale's estate was taken October 22, 1676. His son Ephraim was surety for the widow Elizabeth. Deacon Robert Hinsdale married as his first wife, probably in England, ANN WOODWARD, daughter of Peter Woodward of Dedham, by whom he had six sons and two daughters, probably all born in Dedham. She was a sensitive and timid woman, and fainted away on making profession of her faith before the church at Dedham June 2, 1639. The Puritan method of admission to church membership was by public profession of faith and confession of sin before the congregation, an ordeal trying to the timid and now fortunately obsolete. The church records relate: "The wife of our brother Hinsdale being fearful and not able to speak in publike, but fainting away ther, coming to church in private gave good satisfaction; which being publickly testified and declared, and she confirming the same relation to be so, was received." She died June 4, 1666, and he married, second, about 1668, Elizabeth, widow of John Hawks of Hadley, by whom he had no issue. She was a woman of different mold from Ann. The union did not prove a happy one and they soon parted. At the court held March 30, 1674, they were "presented for living assunder contrary to law," also charged "with lacivious and wanton carrage;" on the examination she refused to answer and appears to have got off clear; he said he "did it as being her head and having the rule of her in the Pointe and that he did it for her correction of her disorder towards him." The court held he had "broken the Perfect rule of divine law Mal. 2: 16; Matt. 19: 6; and 1 Peter 3: 7 & the law of the Colony in the intent if not in the letter in the first living assunder" and ordered him "whipped ten stripes on the naked body" and imposed a fine for which his sons became responsible and which the court refused to remit after his tragic death. On June 25, 1683, his widow Elizabeth married Thomas Dibble of Windsor, Conn., and died September 25, 1689.

married at Boston, Mass., July 7, 1657, by Governor Endicott, to James Rising, of Boston, who at the age of eighteen years, and in the year 1635, sailed for the Bermudas from London, Eng.; was at Harvard College in 1646; removed to the Bermudas; returned to Salem, Mass.; and in a few years removed to Windsor, Conn., where he was admitted an inhabitant March 11, 1668. Elizabeth died at Windsor, August 11, 1669. He married, second, August 13, 1673, widow Martha Bartlett. He kept the Rivulet Ferry at Windsor. In 1679 he removed to Suffield, Mass., where he died September 11, 1688. He went with his father to Hadley, Mass., and lived for several years at Hatfield. He was of Deerfield, Mass., March 27, 1674, when he sold out his Hadley homestead. He lived on lot nine in Deerfield, and also owned lot fifteen which was sold by his heirs in 1707 to Samuel Carter. On May 3, 1667, he, with twenty-four other citizens of Hatfield joined in a petition to the General Court of Massachusetts Colony to have a church established at Hatfield, "on the west side of the river, commonly called by the name of the Connecticut River, where we, for the most part, have lived about six years, and have attended on God's ordinances on the other side of the river at the appointed seasons that we could or durst to pass over the river, the passing being very difficult and dangerous, both in summer and winter, which thing hath proved, and is, an oppressive burden for us to bear, which if by any lawful means, it may be avoided, we should be glad and thankful to this Honored Court to ease us therein, conceiving it to be a palpable breach of the Sabbath," etc. This petition was granted and they were allowed a church. Barnabas Hinsdale was killed with Lathrop at Bloody Brook, September 18, 1675. His widow Sarah married, third, February 3, 1679, Walter Hickson, and died August 10, 1702.

Samuel Hinsdale was killed with Lathrop at Bloody Brook, September 18, 1675. He removed with his father from Dedham to Medfield; married at seventeen, and soon after becoming of age, joined the settlers at Hadley. In 1664, he, with forty-four other citizens of Medfield, signed the now famous Medfield Memorial, of which the following is a copy: "To the Honored General Court of Massachusetts Colonie assembled on the 19th day of the 8th month 1664, the humble Representation of the inhabitants of Medfield. REMARKS MADE AT FUNERAL SERVICES OF
MR. JOHN PHILIP CLUM AT PIERCE BROS., LOS ANGELES,
MAY 4, 1932.

The end of the chapter is reached in the life story of a man who has lived more than four score years. The years have been filled with honorable and distinguished service, full of clear and courageous judgment, of daring and colorful adventure. All who have known him are glad to recall the story of the years.

Nearly 81 years ago upon a farm in New York State, the little lad came into the home made ready to receive him. His parents named him John Philip. One can but wonder if the parents dreamed that the two names would fit so appropriately - John the beloved disciple with a real genius for friendship; Philip the daring adventurer, eager to share with all his friends his best. The boyhood days were spent under circumstances that matured in him a desire to enter upon a career of some large service to his fellows. Brought up in the Dutch Reformed Church, he entered Rutger's College, expecting to study for the ministry, thinking that there he might find such opportunity as he sought. It was at a time when inter-collegiate sports were just beginning. The first international football game was played in 1869 between Rutgers and Princeton. The following year this young man played in the only inter-collegiate game that was played that year, again between Rutgers and Princeton. In the spring of the year he joined the rowing crew but unfortunately contracted inflammatory rheumatism so that it became necessary to withdraw from college and to postpone, perhaps to entirely change, his life plan. He decided to go west to Arizona, hoping there to regain his full vigor. In 1874 he was appointed as the Indian agent among the Apache Indians in New Mexico. At once he began to reveal the capacity for organization and for leadership which have made him distinguished among his fellows, although he remained in the service of the agency but three years. His reports to the Indian Bureau together with his later writings, constitute some of the most important source material for the understanding of the old west and especially of our relations to the Indians.

In 1881 he went to Tombstone, where he became the first Mayor of that city. While there he founded its first newspaper which is still in existence. Later he went to Tuscon where he established the first daily paper in Arizona.

Always ready for fresh adventure, in 1898 he joined the daring company who made their way through the dread Chilkoot Pass in the Klondike Gold Rush. Here once more his unusual capacity for organization and for leadership was promptly recognized and he was appointed to an important Government position.

He first came to California in 1884 when he, like many another traveler, became fascinated with the majesty of its mountains and the beauty of its valleys and the wealth of its sunshine. I doubt not many of you have heard him in the lectures in which he made people all over the United States acquainted with this new wonderland. If you have heard him, you know well his power for vivid and picturesque narative and you will recall the beauty of his pictures.

Fifteen years ago he came to California to make his home. During these years he has lived among his many friends, quietly enjoying his garden, his home and his friends. Day before yesterday he came into his home from his garden and without warning the door was instantly opened through which he passed into the other part of the great house of life. I think it must have been as he would have desired to go, so quietly and so quickly.

I recognize that the story of the events even in such a colorful career leaves unsaid most of what one would like to say. The story of the inner life of such a man is not easy to tell, partly because we cannot easily know each other. It is not easy even to know ones self. Every man is larger than his words and bigger than his deeds. The biggest part of any man worthwile has not yet arrived. This sense of incompleteness is the continual prophesy of what life may come to be in the day of its fulfillment.

And yet though the story must be imperfectly told, there are a few things in the inner life of Mr. Clum of which one can venture to speak. I think he had a keen sense of justice. It is not easy to gain. All of us who are here would like to be just and yet I venture to suggest that each of us will be betrayed into injustice before 24 hours have passed, for no one can be just to another unless he sincerely and intelligently seeks for the best possible results in that other person's life. The moment we seek for anything less than the best, we are thereby betrayed into injustice. Justice therefore calls for a clarity of mind and a greatness of sympathy which comes only through long and earnest discipline. It is much to be able to say of anyone that he was just. Sometimes justice calls for severity. Mr. Clum was not afraid to be severe when it became necessary. Often it calls for courageous independence. Upon one occasion he dared to take single handed the side of the Indians against the army officers. It took courage to do that. At another time he led a group of Apaches to Washington to protest to the President against certain things that were being required of them. It was the first delegation of the kind to go to Washington. It is a great achievement to live justly and what hope can there be for a worthy civilization unless we can obtain just citizens.

And then as I think of him, I think of what seems to me to be his courageous good will. I think the largest problem for any intelligent man is to discipline his life into an unbreakable good will. It is not an easy thing to do. On one occasion he gathered the Apaches upon the reservation to counsel together concerning peace at a time when they were much angered by what they believed to be unjust treatment. Standing among these fierce people without protection, his sense of justice was so easily recognized and his good will was so manifest that the hostility of the Indians was turned by their affection for this man of good will.

And then I think of him as a man of faith. Not, it may be, in the conventional sense. I have never talked with Mr. Clum about his religious convictions but in the true sense he seems to me to have been a man of faith, for faith is the courage of great adventure. Faith is the capacity and the willingness to see the light yonder on the distant hills and then to move toward it though every step of the way lies through the darkness. Faith is the capacity and the willingness when discords sound everywhere in your ears to listen to those great abiding harmonies until you can resolve the discords into the harmony. In this fine fashion our friend was a man of faith.

If now you ask what this experience means through which he has passed, this universal and inevitable experience through which all some day pass, I am sure that we do well at the outset to be true to our ignorance, to confess that we do not know much and therefore not to pretend to know where we cannot know, but I am sure also that any experience that comes alike to all of us must in some way be good else there is fatal flaw in the universe and that none of us are prepared to believe. Many earnest men have tried that path but it does not lead anywhere.

What then does death mean? Long ago a wise man said, "We owe our interest in life to the fact of death." Perhaps that is true. It takes the night to bring out the stars. Upon a day perfectly clear, how far can you see and what can you see? The things that are near at hand, but wait until the curtains of night have fallen, then what can you see? - not the things near at hand save by artificial light, but lift your eyes and millions and millions and millions of worlds look down upon you from the infinite spaces above. Never could we have guessed their presence in the daytime. When life moves by with the fulfillment of our desires, the things that are near at hand are those of which we are most conscious. When death comes, the horizon is pushed back, we begin to see the far distances, the eternal values. But what can we see?

I like much that figure of speech which Jesus uses. It is only a picture but how true it is to our deepest instincts and to all that we know. Here it is. Life is like a great, great house with many rooms. The first room into which we come is childhood. All of us entered that way. It is a beautiful room. God makes us tender by putting in our arms those who need our attention. He makes us careful by giving to us those who need our care. It is a beautiful room into which to enter, but it is tragedy to stay too long in it. A 40 year old child is a tragedy, both for himself and for his friends. Childhood is significant when it opens the door to something larger. The next room is youth. How attractive it is and how challenging. But youth gets a large part of its attractiveness from that to which it leads, and youth ceases to be desirable when it fails to open to something larger than itself. The next great room is the room into which those of us who are here have entered. We call it middle life. What a strange blending of light and of shadow, of success and of failure, but how certainly we know that middle life leads on to that other room we call old age when the heart grows mellow and the mind begins to be haunted with memories and with hopes and there is a certain wistful waiting for something yet to come. Now some day, according to the figure of Jesus, the door opens, -- from this room or this or this or this, out into the great unseen silent part of the house of life. We do not know what waits us there but we can be quite sure that we will find ourselves in that other room and perhaps will find the fulfillment of our dreams and it may be that is all we need to know.

Fading away like the stars of the morning,
Losing their light in the glorious sun,
So let me steal away gently and lovingly
Only remembered by what I have done.
For we must be remembered here or up yonder,
Only remembered by what we have done.

Bob, I can't immerse my brain in Richmond anc. just now, but will tell you the Camillus connection.

Loring Richmond 1781-1859 Camillus , (who was bur next to James M. Baker) was s/o Ed Richmond and Eliz. Throope. Ed died in Stamford VT, I think and Eliz. died in Camillus and I think bur. Oswego Bitter. Anyway, Ed had another son Ed Jr. who m. Polly Blood (Stamford people). Ed Jr. had dau. Harriet Richmond who m. Stephen C. Millard the lawyer, who was grson of our Squire and Mary Wheeler Millard.

So, James M. Baker prob. knew Loring Richmond all his life and that is why he was named as a friend in Loring's will.

Note that our Matt Baker was b. 1768 and our James M. 1795, so they were in between Loring's 1781 birthdate. Makes me wonder if the Bakers and the Richmonds moved together or almost together in time frame. Since they located so close together on Bennett's Corners Rd., may be likely. In that case, Matt may not have had any relatives in Onon. Co.

As to both buying land from Hess – prob. just coincidental because he was selling the land they wanted. I never tried to track Hess.

Loring Richmond 73 yrs res. with his son Ira 26 yrs in 1855 census next to JM Baker. Loring listed himself in Camillus 30 yrs, ca 1825 and ira lifelong in Camillus.

James Baker was 60 and I don't recall offhand how long he claimed to be in Camillus, but we know Matt was in church rec. 1822. Perhaps, Matt preceded Loring to Camillus???

I came across a letter in computer that I wrote to Syr Lib 1996 asking for obits of Mary Larkin Baker, James M. and Lydia Millard Baker. I addressed it to special collections. They don't lend the reels as Albany State Lib. does. I don't have their answer to me, but I only have the very short obit. on James M. and i don't recall if I rec'd it from the lib. it is poss. that they just told me that they don't do research. Don't remember.

Eighth, I will and devise to Andrew Jackson Richmond son of said Shubael Richmond deceased the sum of two hundred dollars. I authorize my Executors to pay the same out of any money that shall come into their hand from my Estate.

Ninth. The remainder of my property to be equally divided into five parts to will Almira Smith, Clarisa Lipe, Adaline Cole, the heirs of Mahala Dunham and Loring Richmond Junr. to be equally divided between them five, and I authorize my Executors pay the ame to them from the money that comes into their hands from my Estate, and I hereby will the same to the above mentioned heirs named and I hereby authorize my hereinafter Executors to sell any Real or Personal property that be not sold before my decease and they receive the avails thereof and of my Personal Estate not herein mentioned or provided for shall as soon after my decease as they reasonably can pay, first all my just debts funeral charges expenses and other necessary sufficient sums, to pay all necessary and legal expenses and fees and as soon as they can shall pay the several legacies hereinbefore mentioned as fast as they can all notes that I hold against my children or those that is included in this will dated after this date shall be deducted from the sum by my Executors from such sums that is willed to them.

Lastly, I do hereby nominate and appoint my friend James M. Baker, Residing in the town of Camilus and Anson Dunham, Residing in the town of Van Buren in the County of Onondaga and State aforesaid to be Executors of this my Last Will and Testament hereby revoking all former wills by me made.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this the fourth day of March A.D. 1857.

TWIN BROOKS FARM, Camillus, NY

As you leave the rural town of Camillus and Route 5, and drive past a number of farms on Bennetts Corners Road, you'll come to a lovely, sprawling white house sitting upon a knoll on the east side of the road. Behind the house flows a bubbling sun-lit brook, which harbors many trout, and minnow, and polly-wogs - the delight of any trout fisherman.

Over beyond the barns and corn field out back, there's a second swiftly-flowing stream. However, this one has an eerie quality about it. It winds through a deep, dark woods on the side of a hill. A feeling of solitude, at-oneness-with-nature permeates your being as the coolness and silence invade your body. There are few places today where one can escape to a spot such as this!

In earlier years this farm of 100 acres was called Maple *Grove Farm. Apples from its orchard were shipped far and wide. Tobacco was raised in its fields and dried in its out-buildings. Maple syrup was tapped from its trees.

Purch. from Mary Carolyn Baker + Isaac Parker

Peter N. Peterson, a forty-year-old Dane from the Isle of Horsens, Denmark purchased Maple Grove in 1902 with cash earned by share-cropping other farms in the Baldwinsville area.

The house had been built in sections, being added to as family size and finances fit the need of growing families. In the book Among the Hills of Camillus, by Mary E. Maxwell, Camillus Historian, it is stated that the house had been on the tax records as early as 1827. It was originally built by James 2 M. Baker.

The Baker and Peterson families had many a wedding, and even funeral rites, in the northern-most room, the parlor. From the house went one of the first young women in the United States to become a Doctor - Dr. Harriet Knox.

Years passed, and when Peter and Sarah's son wed, the older couple moved out of the farmhouse and into a small home in Memphis, just down the road a few miles. Peter's will divided

Dear Ms. Humphrey,

On Sept. 13 I read your request in the Genealogy Section of the Syracuse Herald American newspaper concerning information on James M. Baker of Camillus.

The farm house I was born, raised and now live in was purchased by my paternal grandparents, Peter and Sarah Peterson, in 1902 from Mr. & Mrs. Isaac Parker. Mrs. Parker was the daughter of a James M. Baker. son J Matthew

Son killed Civil war

1819 - who

I am enclosing copies of pages 19 and 20 of "Among the Hills of Camillus" written by Mary Ellis Maxwell, which refers several times to James M. Baker. However, I'm not at all sure it's the same James Baker you are interested in. Also, I'm sure the two James Bakers mentioned are not the same person. The Charles Peterson mentioned was my father. He died in 1972.

Sorry I did not get this to you sooner, but it took a little time to track down this information.

Sincerely,
Helen Peterson Kennedy

P.S. If I can be of any further help, let me know.

Dear Mrs. Peterson,

It was with a sense of wonder and history that I held your letter in my hand with the address of my ancestor. I have become passionately interested in Genealogy after having to take a disability retirement. I am a widow, my husband dying at age 50 from cancer. My maiden name was Baker.

Afew months ago I learned of the book of which you sent me a couple of pages and I was very pleased to be able to purchase a copy. Both pages related to my family. The first James M. Baker was the son of Matthew Baker and Lydia Millard. They removed from Vt. to Camill Camillus about 1822(Matthew). I don't know if James preceded him. The first James M. married twice. Mrs. Isaac Parker was from wf 1. My line is from wf 2. Mrs. Parker was half sister to mygr.grandfather. (The basket factory is new to me). James M. owned canal boats which is related in the book written by his grandson James M. who became a missionary to India for 35 yrs. He was my Gr.Uncle. He is the James M. mentioned on p 20 that you sent me. Charles and Mary Hinsdale Baker were my gr.grandparents. I believe a copy of Uncle Jim's book is in the Camillus library. My grandfather Chas. Baker moved to Brooklyn,NY. He died in his 30's from Diabeted before insulin was discovered. My father Homer Baker was a wellknown track athlete in his day just prior to WWI. He held world records for 660 yd and half mile. My grandfather having died when my father was about 9 yrs of age, the only Baker relative that I knew was Uncle Jim who retired in Ashville, NC duringthe depression. He died about 1950 or so. I wrote to him many times and visited him in NC once.

My Camillus ancestors include the Hinsdale,McCracken,Peck,Farnham (Onondaga Co) names. When I discovered Among The Hills of Camillus, I was delighted to find Mary McCracken's father as Mary Maxwell ‡ the author, was also of this line and devoted a whole page to McCracken. This led me to Washington Co.NY where I traced that family further.

What I am missing are the last names of the first James M.Baker's wives.who are buried with him in Camillus. I am also seeking the origin of Matthew Baker. I wrote to the Camillus Historian but did not receive an answer. Mrs. Isaac Parker live 1831-1911 so was at the end of her days when she sold the home to your grandparents.

If you are willing, I would much appreciate a picture of your home and perhaps you would describe the floorplan of the rooms. What a great heritage, to live where your grandparents lived. I will reimburse you if you send a picture.

Thank you so much for responding to the query.

Sincerely,

Jacqueline Humphrey

long bench on the porch, and discuss the affairs of the day. Later years Desbrough and Holcomb each operated the mill for a time.

In 1906 Will Davis purchased the property and set up a blacksmith shop in the old mill. Time changes everything. Gone are the long lines of farmers waiting at the mill for their grist to be ground, instead they waited at the shop for Will Davis to shoe their horses. He was there for many years and was perhaps the last to shoe horses in the town of Camillus. Today the blacksmith travels around in a truck in which he carries his equipment and shoes horses wherever he is called.

One of the most interesting and unusual bits of history about Oswego Bitter is the wooden railway on which the cars were drawn by oxen. John Lane bought the old mill and home across from it in 1946. In the search of this property, one reads of wooden rails on which oxen drew cars full of grain to the mill. In the search made of the Albert Titus farm is found the same record. It was on the northern boundary of the Titus farm that the line started. There the farmers came with their grain and deposited it in little cars which the oxen drew to the mill. By conjecture it would seem that the most logical route for them to follow would have been along the bank of the brook to the mill.

In 1835, Ezekiel Fuller had a carding machine across the "rhoad" from the grist mill "said grist mill at all times to have water in preference to carding machine." Felix Burton had a cloth factory in 1843 as did Henry Ferow. James Auyer had a cheese factory in the vicinity. William Holcomb invented a curious looking wooden washer which in some ways resembled a wringer inthat it had rolls through which the clothes were put. This he had patented in the 1860's, but how many he made no one knows today.

A man by the name of Greene had a wagon shop across the road from the mill and some distance back from the road. He used water from the brook to turn his lathe.

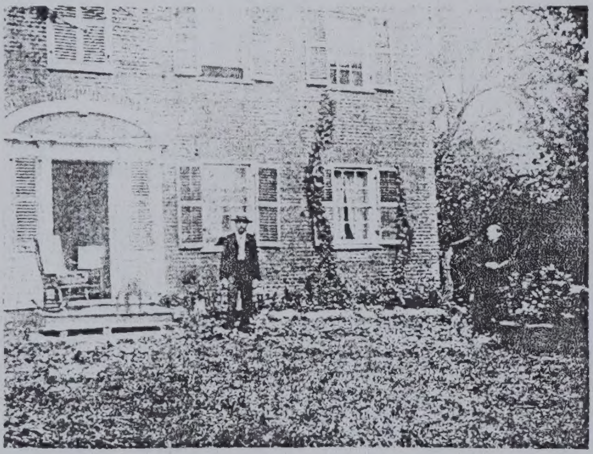
A short distance south on the Bennett's Corners road James M. Baker had a chair factory. When this factory was in operation, what type of chairs were made, or how many people were employed, is unknown. The factory was back of the house, on a side hill with the entrance to the second floor from the house level. Down below was the water wheel which derived its power from a pond. This pond, fed by springs, was likewise on a side hill but had a heavy stone wall on the lower side to hold the water.

James M. Baker was on the tax list as early as 1827. He built a very fine home for his family which was occupied later by his daughter, Mrs. Isaac Parker. It is now the home of Charles Peterson, Road Commissioner. Mr. Baker at one time rented a house and this yearly rent is interesting. He had to pay "½ grain for a family of five, also ½ feed for 2 cows, 2 hogs, 20 hens, 1 horse, grain for same, and to prepare ½ firewood needed for his use. ¼ beef, 1 pig, ½ potatoes, ½ apples. After ten years or pay $37½ on Apr. 1 and $37.50 on Oct. 1 each year."

Years ago the Road Commissioner was called the Path Master. On the Bennett's Corners road leading to Memphis just north of the Arthur Campbell home, was a hill, not long but steep. The Path Master called all men in the district and in one day's time with picks and shovels and wheel-barrows they removed the hill. For this they were given a dinner at Bell's tavern and all the whisky they could drink. (25 cents a gallon).

Another interesting thing about the Oswego Bitter vicinity is the type of homes which were built by the early settlers. One has the feeling, that as each new home was built, the owner wished it to be as fine, but no better, than his neighbors. The farmers took great pride in their homes which always had the appearance of being well kept. Most of the homes had attractive fences and all had flower gardens in the front yards.

The Bennett's Corners road which leads to Memphis, has for years been called "The Street." When any of the neighbors had sorrows or trouble of any kind The Street was always ready to lend a helping hand. Even today their spirit of cooperation is inspiring.



Paddock home, built in 1805

There are four brick houses on that road which are of the same general type and one feels safe in assuming that they were built about the same time and under like conditions. The first one on the left going north owned by the Paddocks, is said to have been built in 1805. The bricks were "puddled" by oxen on the William Dixon farm on the Ike Dixon road. The mason for the job was a man by the name of Burch whose charge for laying the bricks was $100. plus a barrel of whisky. John Paddock purchased the farm from Loring Richmond in 1853 and it has been ing bench on the porch, and discuss the affairs of the day. Later years Brownough and Holbrook each operated the mill for a time.

In 1940 Will Doyle purchased the property and set up a blacksmith shop in the old mill. Time changes everything. Gone are the long lines of farmers waiting at the mill for their grist to be ground, instead they waited at the shop for Will Doyle to shoe their horses. He was there for many years and was perhaps the last to shoe horses in the town of Granville. Today, the blacksmith travels around in a truck in which he carries his equipment and shoes horses wherever he is called.

One of the most interesting and unusual bits of history about Gurney Gutter is the wooden railway on which the corn were taken by rail. John Utter bought the old mill and built across from it in 1846. In the deeds of this property, one made of wooden rails on which were drawn cars full of grain to the mill. In the records of the Albert Tyler farm is found the same record. It was on the northeast boundary of the Tyler farm that the line started. There the farmers came with their grain and deposited it in the cars which the cars drew to the mill. By inspection it would seem that the most logical route for them to follow would have been along the base of the brook to the mill.

In 1833, Ezekiel Tyler had a carding machine across the "street" from the grist mill "and good wool of all kinds to have wools in readiness to carding machine." Frank Dewey had a shirt factory in 1843 at the Henry Tripp's. James Utter had a cheese factory in the vicinity. William Holbrook invented a curious looking wooden washer which in some ways resembled a wringer in that it had rolls through which the clothes were put. This he had patented in the 1860's, but how many he made no one knows today.

A man by the name of Greene had a wagon shop across the road from the mill and some distance back from the road. He used water from the brook to turn his lathe.

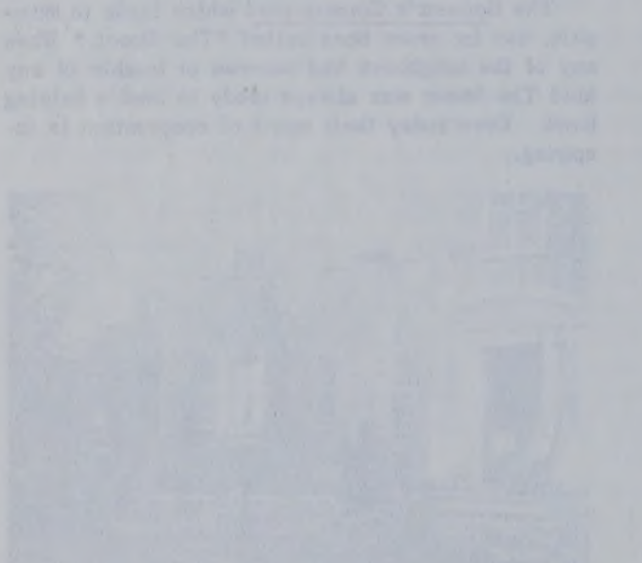
A short distance north on the Bennett's Corners road Henry E. Tyler had a chair factory. When this factory was in operation, what type of chairs were made, or how many people were employed, is not known. The factory was back of the house, on a side hill with the entrance to the second floor from the house level. Down below was the water wheel which derived its power from a pond. This pond, now dry, was [illegible] on a side hill and had a heavy stone wall on the lower side to hold the water.

James M. Tuttle was on the farm as early as 1840. He built a very fine house for his family which was purchased later by his daughter, Mrs. [illegible]. It is now the home of Clinton Parsons, [illegible]. Mr. Tuttle at that time received a lease and this yearly rent is interesting. He had to pay "½ bush. for a family of four, was to last for 2 years, 2 hogs, 20 hens, 1 horse, grain for same, and to pasture 1 thousand needed for his use, ½ beef, 1 pig, 8 potatoes, 8 apples. After ten years to pay $37½ on Apr. 1 and $37.50 on Oct. 1 each year."

Years ago the Town Commissioner was called the Path Master. On the Bennett's Corners road leading to Bentonia just north of the Arthur Campbell house, was a hill, matching the sharp. The Path Master called all men in the district and in one day's time with picks and shovels and wheel-barrows they removed the hill. For this they were given a dinner at Bell's tavern and all the whiskey they could drink. (23 cents a gallon).

Another interesting thing about the Gurney Kitchen vicinity is the type of house which were built by the early settlers. They had the feeling that as each new home was built, the owner wished it to be as fine, but no better, than his neighbors. The farmers took great pride in their homes which always had the appearance of being well kept. Most of the homes had attractive fences and all had flower gardens in the front yards.

The Bennett's Corners road which leads to Bentonia, has for years been called "The Church." When any of the neighbors had sickness or trouble of any kind the home was always ready to lend a helping hand. Even today their spirit of cooperation is inspiring.



Paddock house built in 1829

There are four brick houses on that road which are of the same general type and one can't help in wondering that they were built about the same time and under like conditions. The first one on the left going north owned by the Paddocks. It is said to have been built in 1825. The bricks were "puddled" by hand on the William Evans farm on the Dolan road. The person for the job was a man by the name of Trask whose charge for laying the bricks was $100, plus a barrel of whiskey. John Paddock purchased the farm from Irving Robinson in 1924 and it has been by Mary Maxwell long bench on the porch, and discuss the affairs of the day. Later years Desbrough and Holcomb each operated the mill for a time.

In 1906 Will Davis purchased the property and set up a blacksmith shop in the old mill. Time changes everything. Gone are the long lines of farmers waiting at the mill for their grist to be ground, instead they waited at the shop for Will Davis to shoe their horses. He was there for many years and was perhaps the last to shoe horses in the town of Camillus. Today the blacksmith travels around in a truck in which he carries his equipment and shoes horses wherever he is called.

One of the most interesting and unusual bits of history about Oswego Bitter is the wooden railway on which the cars were drawn by oxen. John Lane bought the old mill and home across from it in 1946. In the search of this property, one reads of wooden rails on which oxen drew cars full of grain to the mill. In the search made of the Albert Titus farm is found the same record. It was on the northern boundary of the Titus farm that the line started. There the farmers came with their grain and deposited it in little cars which the oxen drew to the mill. By conjecture it would seem that the most logical route for them to follow would have been along the bank of the brook to the mill.

In 1835, Ezekiel Fuller had a carding machine across the "rhoad" from the grist mill "said grist mill at all times to have water in preference to carding machine." Felix Burton had a cloth factory in 1843 as did Henry Ferow. James Auyer had a cheese factory in the vicinity. William Holcomb invented a curious looking wooden washer which in some ways resembled a wringer inthat it had rolls through which the clothes were put. This he had patented in the 1860's, but how many he made no one knows today.

A man by the name of Greene had a wagon shop across the road from the mill and some distance back from the road. He used water from the brook to turn his lathe.

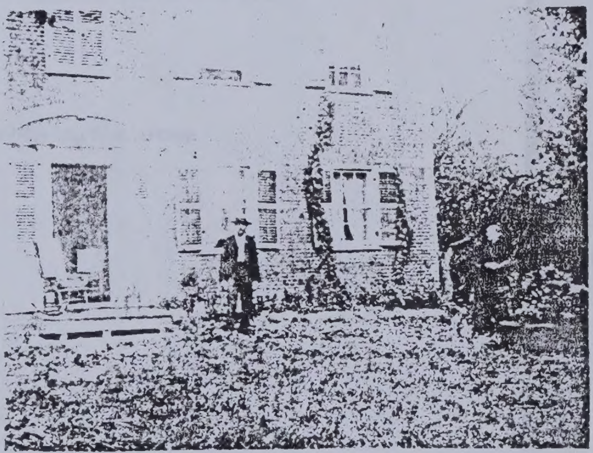
A short distance south on the Bennett's Corners road James M. Baker had a chair factory. When this factory was in operation, what type of chairs were made, or how many people were employed, is unknown. The factory was back of the house, on a side hill with the entrance to the second floor from the house level. Down below was the water wheel which derived its power from a pond. This pond, fed by springs, was likewise on a side hill but had a heavy stone wall on the lower side to hold the water.

James M. Baker was on the tax list as early as 1827. He built a very fine home for his family which was occupied later by his daughter, Mrs. Isaac Parker. It is now the home of Charles Peterson, Road Commissioner. Mr. Baker at one time rented a house and this yearly rent is interesting. He had to pay "½ grain for a family of five, also ½ feed for 2 cows, 2 hogs, 20 hens, 1 horse, grain for same, and to prepare ½ firewood needed for his use. ¼ beef, 1 pig, ½ potatoes, ½ apples. After ten years or pay $37½ on Apr. 1 and $37.50 on Oct. 1 each year."

Years ago the Road Commissioner was called the Path Master. On the Bennett's Corners road leading to Memphis just north of the Arthur Campbell home, was a hill, not long but steep. The Path Master called all men in the district and in one day's time with picks and shovels and wheel-barrows they removed the hill. For this they were given a dinner at Bell's tavern and all the whisky they could drink. (25 cents a gallon).

Another interesting thing about the Oswego Bitter vicinity is the type of homes which were built by the early settlers. One has the feeling, that as each new home was built, the owner wished it to be as fine, but no better, than his neighbors. The farmers took great pride in their homes which always had the appearance of being well kept. Most of the homes had attractive fences and all had flower gardens in the front yards.

The Bennett's Corners road which leads to Memphis, has for years been called "The Street." When any of the neighbors had sorrows or trouble of any kind The Street was always ready to lend a helping hand. Even today their spirit of cooperation is inspiring.



Paddock home, built in 1805

There are four brick houses on that road which are of the same general type and one feels safe in assuming that they were built about the same time and under like conditions. The first one on the left going north owned by the Paddocks, is said to have been built in 1805. The bricks were "puddled" by oxen on the William Dixon farm on the Ike Dixon road. The mason for the job was a man by the name of Burch whose charge for laying the bricks was $100. plus a barrel of whisky. John Paddock purchased the farm from Loring Richmond in 1853 and it has been long bench on the porch, and discuss the affairs of the day. Later years Gashbough and Holcomb each operated the mill for a time.

In 1856 Will Davis purchased the property and set up a blacksmith shop in the old mill. Time changes everything. Gone are the long lines of farmers waiting for the next day's grist to be ground, instead they gathered at the shop for Will Davis to shoe their horses. He was there for many years and was perhaps the last to shoe horses in the town of Camillus. Today the blacksmith travels around in a truck in which he carries his equipment and shoes horses wherever he is called.

One of the most interesting and unusual bits of history about [illegible] is the wooden railway on which the cars were drawn by oxen. John Lewis bought the old mill and some acreage from it in 1846. In the search of this property, one reads of wooden rails on which oxen drew cars full of grain to the mill. In the search made of the Abbot Title Co. is found the same record. It was on the northern boundary of the Town line that the line started. There the farmers came with their grain and deposited it in little cars which the oxen drew to the mill. By observation it would seem that the most logical route for this railroad would have been along the bank of the brook to the mill.

In 1825, Ezekiel Fuller had a carding machine across the "flood" from the grist mill "said grist mill at all times to have water in preference to carding machine." Felix Norton had a clock factory as well as did Henry Farnee. Jonny Tyler had a cheese factory in the vicinity. William Holcomb invented a [illegible] looking wooden washer which in some ways resembled a wringer in that it had rolls through which the clothes were put. This he had patented in the 1860's, but how many he made no one knows today.

A short distance south on the Bennett's Corner road [illegible] had a chair factory. When this factory was in operation what type of chairs were made, or how many people were employed, is unknown. The factory was back of the house, on a side hill, with the entrance to the second floor from the road level. Down below was the water wheel which brought its power from a pond. This pond, fed by springs, was located on a side hill but had a heavy stone wall on the lower side to hold the water.

James M. [illegible] lived on the lot that as early as 1823. He had a [illegible] log house for his family which was occupied later by his daughter, Mrs. [illegible] Parker. Paddock home, built in 1809

There are four brick houses on that road which are of the same general type and one feels safe in assuming that they were built about the same time and under like conditions. The first one on the left going north, owned by the Paddocks, is said to have been built in 1809. The bricks were "paddled" by hand on the William Dixon farm on the Dixon road. The mason for the job was a man by the name of Frank whose charge for laying the bricks was $100 and a barrel of whiskey. John Paddock purchased the farm from [illegible] Loring [illegible] in 1865 and it has been in the Paddock family for nigh unto one hundred years. Ira Paddock, a nephew of John, was the next to own the farm. Herbert H. took it over upon the death of his father and now Herbert K. is working the farm since his father H. H. moved to the village a few years ago. There are three young sons living there who may some day follow in the footsteps of their ancestors.

The only brick house on the right side of the road is nameless for no one knows to whom it belonged when it was built. The Baker family owned it during the 1860's. James M. Baker, the son of Charles and Mary Hinsdale Baker, was born there December 13, 1866. The family moved to Medina soon after. The Merrimans owned the nice old frame house next on the north and at sometime owned or rented the brick house.

Brick house No. 3 was the home of Ethan Campbell. Of late years it has had no front steps but originally it had a porch with green lattice work under it. This place impresses one as having had great dignity in its early days.

The fourth brick house was built by the Stickles family. They were very early settlers coming to Camillus by an ox team. They were residents of this community for many years.

John Larkin built a beautiful frame house which stands on a little knoll where the road leads to the old mill. The woodwork in the parlors is very unusual and lovely. A wrought iron fence rested on grey limestone blocks and with the addition of gay flower beds, the effect was beautiful. E. Duane Sherwood married Mary, a daughter of John Larkin. After the death of Mr. Larkin, the Delaney family bought the property and the grandson, James Moore, is the present owner.

On another slight knoll back from the street stands the gracious home of the Pickard family. This house is white and has a front porch with pillars extending to the roof.

Nicholas N. Pickard Jr. bought this property in 1829 and undoubtedly built the house soon after. He had a son Darwin Lorenzo and a daughter Catharine. It was probably Catharine's daughter who told the present owner Glen Button in 1940 that her grandfather had built the house. Darwin L. Pickard's first wife, Kate Reynolds, was the author of a well known book entitled "The Kidnapped and the Ransomed." This book was printed in 1856 and had an introduction by Dr. Samuel J. May of Syracuse.

Perhaps one of the oldest houses on The Street is that of Jonathan Marshall. This stands on the brow of the hill overlooking the old cemetery where he was the first person buried.

Only houses one hundred years old at least have been given consideration in this book.

Maxwell, p. 20 says Merriman sometimes rented, sometimes owned a frame house on Bennett´s Corners Rd, next to Brick house belonging to Baker. Merriman NOT listed on Bennett´s Corners Rd 1854 map.

1824, 14 May, James and first wf Polly Parker sold 25 acres of Lot 77 Tn Camillus to Lorin Richmond, brook to swamp. On 1854 map, L. Richmond and Baker families were connected in VT and also earlier in MA.

Baker had a furniture factory in barn at back acc. to Lorenda Parker Knox letter to Mrs. Peterson (Knox was grd. of James Baker). On 1854 map Jerome C. Baker is listed on Bennett´s Corners Rd. east side of rd with a saw mill, north of father James´ house.

#1. left side going north (west side) of rd, built 1805 owned by Loring Richmond who sold to John Paddock in 1853. Remember that James Baker sold to Loring Richmond in 1825.

#2. the only BRICK house on the right side (East side) of Bennett´s Corners Rd was owned by the Baker´s in 1860. Maxwell didnt know who built it. Maxwell wrote that James M. Baker was b. there in 1866. He was Rev. J.M. Baker, grandson and namesake of James M. Baker. Chas. A. Baker and wf Mary Hinsdale, parents of Rev. James Baker obviously lived there when Rev. James was born in 1866. This land must have originally belonged to James M. Baker who d. in 1866. James was father of Chas. A. Baker who was to inherit land from his father acc. to his Will. Father James d. 1866. On p. 20, Maxwell says the Merrimans owned a frame house located next to the Baker brick house (going north), and they sometimes owned or rented the Baker brick house. Merriman not listed as property owner on Bennett´s Corners Rd. on 1854 map. Remember that James M. Baker first lived in a log house abt 1824, that later became the Merriman farm as noted in obit. of Mary Caroline Baker Parker, d/o James M. Baker. Was Merriman related?

#3 Brick house was owned by Ethan Campbell. Note that James M. Baker bot 100 acres land Lot 63 bounded by Ethan

Campbell. Helen Kennedy who lives in the old James M. Baker frame house, says brick house #3 was the one closest to her house and was across the street and burned to the ground some yrs ago. Bob Fletcher, grson of former owner, bought the property after the fire.

#4 brick house owned by Stickles. C.J. Stickles appears 1854 map on Bennett's Corners Rd. quite a bit north of James Baker and his children's. homes, and north of Gilley, almost to Canton (Memphis).

Maxwell, p. 20, locates John Larkin's FRAME house on a little knoll Bennett's Corners Rd. where the rd leads to the old mill. John married Maria, dau. of James M. Baker. On 1854 map, he is on W. side of rd nr Gilley's. (Wonder if Larkin's land was also once land of James M. Baker, since his son Jerome Baker and dau. Mrs. Isaac Parker live nearby). This land passed on to Delaney family, then to Delaney grson James Moore acc. to Maxwell.

1857 son Henry Baker md by this yr to Frances Stephens.

1857, James M. Baker made his will.
Son Jerome C. recd addl $ from substantial amt. already given him. (Perh. to operate his furniture factory).
Son Henry J. Baker $ and 100 acres of the farm purch. by James M. Baker from Henry Hess, running through on the N. line to E. line of Lot 77. (Were Henry Z and Henry J. the same or different people)?
Son Chas. A. recd $ and 100 acres from the N. part of the home farm on the Rockwell line thru to his E. line on Lot 77, also enough from the S. part of the farm that is called the Bennett farm which James Baker bought from John and William Larkin. Also mentioned in the will was fruit on Henry Z. Baker.
Note: There was a Larkin/Bennett connection earlier in Saratoga Co.
Daughters in will were: Maria Larkins, Carolyn Parker, Julia Cook, Ori(n)da B. Sperry, grson James Bates s/o James Baker's deceased dau. Lucy Bates.
(Note: Lucy had m. as 2nd wf to Wilson Bates. Carolyn m. Issac G. Parker, Julia md Alanson Cook, Orinda m. Marquis Truman Sperry. Sperry died violently}.

1858, James and Mary sold Camillus land to Henry J. Baker.
1858, Nov. Mary Larkin Baker, wf of James died.
1858, James sold Lot 63 Camillus to Jerome c. Baker.
1858, son Jerome and wf Betsy sold Camillus land to James.
1859 Aug. son Chas. A. Baker md Mary Hinsdale.
1859, James leased Camillus land to C.A. Baker, prob. son Chas.
1860 census James still in Camillus, wf dead. His mother Lydia still with him. Daus. Mrs. John Larkin, Mrs. Isaac Parker 11 houses from James. Son Henry owning property, lived a distance away between two Thorpe families, just west of VILLAGE of Camillus. His wf Frances Stephens had boarded with Thorpe in 1855 before her marriage to Henry. Chas. A. lived Camillus owning property near neighbors Mary L. Cook, Cyrus Sweet and Alex. Raymond. On 1854 map I see Cook and two Sweet families listed on Bennett's Corners Rd. S. of James Baker which appears to be S. of Tn of WELLINGTON.

1864 James sold Camillus land to C.A. Baker, prob. son Chas.
1866 James died and his mother Lydia died.
1867 Execs of James Baker sold Lot 221, Van Buren land to O. Danks/Danko.

Comments:
Cook. d/o James Baker marr. Alanson Cook.
Wood. Baylies fam. connected to a Wood family in MA.
Tyler - first name Loran may be connected to Richmond.
Richmond. Guardian of Thos. Sarj. Baker was Ezra Richmond in MA. Baker and Millard fam. had land dealing with Richmond fam. in VT. Loran Richmond, 31, near Jerome Baker prob. s/o Loran Richmond, 73 yrs living next to James Baker. One clue here is CT birth of older Loran.
Baker/Welton, see Cook/Walton, see Larkin/Welton. Same name? Related?
James M. Baker, wf Mary Larkin, 50 yrs (strikeover), for b. 1805 which is wrong acc. to other info. In 1850 census, she listed as age 51 for birth 1799. typed cem. sheet first bur. Robbin or Sherwood cem, then moved to Maplewood lists Mary d. 1858, age 61 for birth ca 1797. Why James in a Brick house. He built a frame house!!! Did James build a better house after the frame one? Seems son Jerome lived in the frame house on Bennett's Corners Rd since we know that was site of the chair factory. James' house valued at $1800 in 1850 and 1855, Jerome's house valued at only $1200 in 1855. James and Lydia must have died while residing in the brick house, both in 1866. Who got the brick house? Jerome would be eldest son and most likely candidate. We know Baker dau. Mary Carolyn Parker resided in the frame house til abt 1903 when the Petersen fam. purch. from Parker. Note that Parker and Jerome reside next each other. James Baker not as close.

Isaac Parker and wf Mary C. Baker, d/o James. They went to VT shortly after marr. to his relatives. Later retd to Cam. This explains why only 6 yrs Cam. ch. Celinda must have been Lorenda that m Knox.

Jerome Baker m Betsy Evans. nfr sister martha J. thr k bro onan-the Cty ca 1803 John Larkin m. Mariah Baker, d/o James. Larkin's sister Mary m James Baker and also became his mother in law.

Wilson Bates, widower of Lucy Baker, d/o James. James M. Bates, was s/o Lucy. Other ch. were Bates by prev. wf. prob. James M. Bates was only Bates in will of James M. Baker, so Lucy's only child. In order to track Bates line, need to ck Columbia, Chenango Co. NY and R.I. figuring Hannah Bates as mother of Wilson. Son James Bates died before marr. Lucy Baker's line died out.

Alanson Cook m Julia Baker, d/o James. Need to search NJ for his line.

I find the name Gilley several times on census here. ~~I am wondering if the name Tilley from letters of Lorenda Knox was misread when extracted and if could have been Gilley?~~

In the book "Among the Hills of Camillus" by Mary Ellis Maxwell is the following paragraph: On Bennett Corners Road - The only brick house on the right side of the road is nameless for no one knows to whom it belonged when it was built. The Baker family owned it during the 1860's. James M. Baker, the son of Charles and Mary Hinsdale Baker, was born there December 13, 1866. The family moved to Medina soon after.

Another paragraph reads: John Larkin built a beautiful frame house which stands on a little knoll where the road leads to the old mill. The woodwork in the parlors is very unusual and lovely. A wrought iron fence rested on grey limestone blocks and with the addition of gay flower beds, the effect was beautiful. E. Duane Sherwood married Mary, a daughter of John Larkin. After the death of Mr. Larkin, the Delaney family bought the property and the grandson, James Moore is the present owner.

John m Maria Baker d/o James M. Baker

I don't know if the above Larkin is related to you.

Also found the following: A short distance south on the Bennett's Corners Road James M. Baker had a chair factory. When this factory was in operation, what type of chairs were made, or how many people were employed, is unknown. The factory was back of the house, on a side hill with the entrance to the second floor from the house level. Down below was the water wheel which derived its power from a pond. This pond, fed by springs, was likewise on a side hill but had a heavy stone wall on the lower side to hold the water. James M. Baker was on the tax list as early as 1827. He built a very fine home for his family which was occupied later by his daughter, Mrs. Isaac Parker. Mr. Baker at one time rented a house and this yearly rent is interesting. He had to pay "½ grain for a family of five, also ½ feed for 2 cows, 2 hogs, 20 hens, 1 horse, grain for same, and to prepare ½ firewood needed for his use. ¼ beef, 1 pig, ½ potatoes ½ apples. After ten years or pay $37½ on April 1 and $37.50 on Oct. 1 each year.

Hope these little paragraphs are of interest to you.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Kelly,

I have prepared an article which I would like to submit for consideration for publication in your periodical of the Saratoga area. If published, I would like to purchase a copy of the issue in which it appears.

You have done some research for me in the past on Weaver and Gaylor/Keler families. I attended your lecture in Cocoa, Fl, thus we are not strangers.

Sincerely,

INTRODUCTION

This family history contains valuable genealogical information which is not available elsewhere. It is a photocopy of a handwritten copy which Mr. Murl Larkin received from Mrs. William H. Larkin of Ballston Spa, several years ago. It is not known if this was a facsimile of the original writing. The character of the writing is old fashioned and was written in pencil or pen and ink. Accuracy was dependent on the transcriber's ability to decipher the handwriting, thus may contain some misspelling.

The narrative is undated and unsigned. Florence Baker, the last child and only daughter of Charles A. Baker and Mary Hinsdale is mentioned by Anson. She was born Dec. 1875, thus the narrative was written after that date.

The family lines herein narrated agree with research done by Mrs. Elizabeth Larkin, Murl Larkin and Jacqueline Baker Humphrey. Elizabeth is in the process of writing a book on the Larkin family; Murl descends from Samuel Larkin and Sophia Bigelow; Jacqueline descends from Polly Larkin, the second wife of James Baker. Please note that Polly Larkin's brother John married Mariah Baker, daughter of James Baker by his first wife, Polly Parker. Thus, Polly Larkin's brother John became her stepson-in-law.

Mrs. Elizabeth Larkin states that the maiden name of the second wife of Amos Larkin was Mercy Jolls. She was the widow Easterbrook. She believes that the earlier Saratoga Co. marriage of Amos Locking and Mary Monro/Munro, belonged to Amos Larkin, son of Joshua4.

In the interest of clarity, parentheses, underlining and generation numbering have been placed by the compiler. The names of the children that Anson continued in the history were underlined. The submitter has changed some punctuation and paragraphing where the intent of Anson was clear.

Submitted by Jacqueline Baker Humphrey, 325 South Banana River Boulevard, Apt. 505, Cocoa Beach, Florida, 32931.

Ann married a man by the name of E(arl)s from Michigan. He died soon after. Zilphia remains single as yet.

I corresponded with a Mrs. Holbrook in the 70's who gave me info about David's marriage + family. She wrote that early in the 1900's David and Frank Johnson sons of "Mary Ann". ? visited family in Saratoga Co. I have a copy of David E. Larkin will — March 185- he was of Knox Co., Illinois. (Elba) He left his estate to Mercy Ann.

I found a "Mercy Ann" Johnson in California census when I was out there in '87-89 - but wasn't sure if she was the right one. — Also saw David L. (prob. Larkin) Johnson?

Could not find James (LARKIN) but was looking in wrong county.

Aaron is undoubtedly the Aaron Larkin from Knox Co. Ill. who joined the "Jayhawkers" a party of young men on their way to the Gold Fields. They chose a trail that led them thru "Death Valley" (Cal.) suffering incredible hardship.

The best accont of this is in Death Valley '49ers by Frank Latta. It was published in 1979 by him — under "Bear State Books" Santa Cruz, CA and I felt very fortunate to get a copy. On p. 69 he writes:

"Aaron Larkin was from Knoxville Illinois and died at Humbolt, California in 1853".

Your Amos' younger brother.
His son Samuel is Murl Larkin's ancestor.

Proof of mary Larkins marriage to James Millard Baker, and Mary's father Amos5 Larkin. Although not an original, it is a handwritten copy. Although not signed by Anson Joseph Larkin, it does say his grandfather was Joseph5. It does not mention that Amos married twice, first to Mary "Polly" Munro or Monro; 2nd to Mercy Jolls Easterbrook. I am inclined to believe that Mary was from wf 1.

If Anson Joseph signed it, the copier did not write that or the date. Since it was written after the 4th child (Florence) of Chas. Baker and Mary Hinsdale was born in Medina, it was written after 1875, and before his death in 1904.

Dear Jacqueline:

Enclosed is a xorox copy of the Anson Joseph LARKIN genealogy. I have never had the original, but a copy was provided me by Mrs. William H. Larkin of Ballston Spa, N.Y. several years ago. I presume she, or one of her children, has the original now, and if you are in contact with some of her descendants, perhaps you can locate the original.

I am sorry the enclosed copy is not better, but the copy I have is very poor. I hope, however, it will be of some help to you.

I hope by now you have recovered from thesurgery and are back on the genealogy road.

Very best wishes,

Camp near Warrenton Va. July 30th 1863.—

Mrs. Parker,

SAD?

Dear Madam. I hardly know how to begin this s. letter, how best to perform the sorrowful duty which is alas! that is left me now of telling you of George's wound and death of his last words, and messages of love to you all at home.— a yet I know very well that in this, your great bereavement every word and action of his during those last few days will ever be speaking precious.— Indeed I ought to have written soon only that so long as there was the least possibility of his recovery so as there was left in the shadow of hope that the news of his death in some ways premature I could not bring myself to speak of as one who was gone.— But now all this is past—. I realize that George has indeed gone from us. that with all his enthusiastic patriotism the innate manliness this noble boy has passed through the portal of [illegible] death to a city of Rest.— And I am glad that since it must be so, that it was I who received his farewell words who the last to press his hand when wounded and bleeding he was carried off the field and who was with him as I believe in almost the last hours of consciousness, and I am glad for my own sake that I pay this last tribute to his worth in telling how nobly he died.— A regiment became engaged as I should judge about 10 o'clock on Fr. the 3rd inst. the four right companies being comparatively well protected behind a ledge of rocks the left wing imperfectly sheltered by a breastwork logs and exposed to a raking fire.— By the nature of the ground companies "C" "H" & [illegible] were most exposed and on these companies the loss fell he

The whole regiment opened fire at once every man fighting faithfully.
I was soon too much engaged to notice what others were doing and fired about half my ammunition when some one behind called out
"Rob. Parker is wounded". — I turned and asked "How badly?". He did n-know and again I turned to the fight. — In a few moments I again heard my name called and was told that George was badly wounded in the breast. I got permission of the Captain to be absent a few minutes, and hu to the rear. — I soon found George, lying on his back, his head a little ra and the blood slowly trickling from a bullet wound in the upper breast
How it made me feel I can never tell. — He looked up and smiled a patted mine warmly saying he was glad to see me. I could see in his face no sign of fear, or trace of the pain he must have been suffering. — He as he lay there, like a fallen hero. — "Well Robert" said he "I'm hit — you know I always thought I should be wounded" — we then had so little talk about the wound. — he said he thought the ball had p passed through his body and I spoke hopefully about it saying that it might not be as bad as it looked. that it was a good thing it had not been lower that he must keep up good spirits &c. Oh said he, yo

"I am not afraid. I dont believe I know what fear is". — And he sp spoke truly. a braver boy never lived. — I gave him some water from my =teen and poured some on his head and breast which seemed very com =ful to him. and we talked considerably about the fight. Speak ing of his cartridges some of which lay by his side. "I fired most all of them he said. — then rousing a little, "Robert" said he, "if I die tell my parents I did my duty while I was there" They will know that, I said. a know it, and if the worst does come you will feel that it was in a good cause." — "Ah!" he returned "it is a glorious cause, a glorious cause to fight then for a moment he added, "tell sister that she need never be ashamed of her brother". — We talked a little more and he spoke of our long intimacy and close friendship, and while my own voice faltered trembled his was as steady as ever. — It made me cry to see him so brave, so tranquil. but oh! so sorely smitten and feel that I could do nothing to aid him. "George" I asked "can I do anything for you" "no" he said, "only my side pains me so." — With the help of an hospital assistant who had been with him from the first, I then carried him back to a better place arranged knapsacks under his head [illegible] so that he could lie easy and once more bathing his head and wound, I went back to my place — I had been gone but a few minutes but during this the fighting had been incessant and continuous for some half an hour. — the rebels then broke and ran. the remainder of our brigade moved forward. the left wing of our regiment retired, the right took its place. and in the lull which followed I again went to see George. — I found him just where I left him and well attended too the hospital attendant had carefully his face and the blood from his hands and breast. — It gave him great pleasure to have me by him and I did all that I could thing for his comfort. — Many of the officers among them the Colonel came to see him and say a word of encouragement and sympathy. — Capt. Gere was very much affected, and as he took George's hand his voice choked so that he could hardly speak. — Lieut. Marks also seemed to feel very deeply. — It gratified George very much to see them all and he had a word for each. — In a short time a litter was brought and I helped lift him on it and arranged pillow for him everything was done as tenderly as possible. I bade him Good By prom ising to come and see him if I could, and as he was carried off to the hospital. with a heavy heart. I turned back to my place in the ranks. The next day was the 4th of July. Ah! it was a sad Fourth to me. how different from the one I spent with George just a year before! Our regiment was lying in position near the front read to move or to fight at any moment. I could not be away so waited how anxiously for news from the hospital. About 8 o'clock one of our company by the name of Buxton came up and told me that it was feared that George's wound was mortal and that he wanted to see me. — I de termined to go to him if possible and though neither Capt. Place or the Col. could give me permission I went to Gen. Shaler and fro him obtained a pass giving me the freedom of the lines until — o'clock. How thankful I was even for that although as I should have to walk five or six miles it would only give me a few min utes with George. — I found him lying on the ground but wrapped up in a blanket and near the door where he had plenty of air. — I w was glad for his sake that none of those near him seemed to be very severe ly wounded and that there were no surgical operations near th it was the best tent I passed through. — He roused as I came in and with a little help sat up. he had evidently lost a good deal of blood and was quite pale but his face had that old smile yet. — I a asked him if his wound gave him much pain. he said "no, but he felt thro' his whole system" and spoke of pains in his side. said he surgeon to get around to him. I immediately went and got a couple of doctors to come and see him, but they could do nothing the ball was in his body and could not be extracted - it only rem ained to let nature take its course and hope for the best. — I asked Dr., — of our regiment if he could not give him something to relieve h pain and he gave him a powder which seemed to soothe him a little. — After I had some little talk with him and tried to cheer him that I could. I told him how anxious I had been to get to him and how glad others would be to come and how many spoke of him. "what do they say?" he asked. — "Every one speaks of you having done your duty bravely and well." I answered. "the Lieut says he could not have missed a man in his regiment more Capt. Gere says he loved you as a brother" — I then told him if he wished I would write to my brother at Washington to Tel-egraph for his father. "Well" says he "you may. I wish you wo then alas! too late. — I could stay no longer and rose to bid him Good By. "George" said I "let us hope for the best, and if the worst comes — "God will take care of me" he answered. —

It was the last he said except to bid me Good By. — I left him expecting to see him again on the morrow but that morrow found me miles away following the retreating enemy. — I n never saw him again but his last words I shall never, never forget The last I heard from him was the morning of the 6th w when Dr. Knapp overtook the regiment bringing the sad news that h he was very low and could not survive the wound. — Until th then I had not given up the hope that with his iron constitution and endurance he might yet recover, but it was not thus to be with all his hopes, his talents and his noble aspiration—he has offered himself for his country's good and God accepted his sacrifice.— It is our loss, but his eternal gain.—he has died just as always he wished to die—in the battle's front with his face to the foe, his character unstained, his name untarnished a man, a soldier, a Christian.— Although I could be with him but little during those last few days, it is a comfort to know that he did not lack friends. he spoke to me particularly of the kindness of Buxton who was with him also a portion of the 5th.— Buxton was one of Gen. Newton's cooks and brought him many little delicacies and although he could not eat much the milk drinks were very acceptable.— Buxton told me it was a pleasure to do anything for him he was so thankful. It was I think on the 5th that he told Buxton that he was afraid he should die, but he added "it would be all right if my father and mother were only here"—The whole regiment almost mourn him for he was generally known and everywhere loved.— I never knew of his having an enemy but many who could not appreciate his patriotism or principles respected his honest integrity and unswerving firmness.— Between him and myself there was the closest intimacy, which has grown and strengthened since the first day of our acquaintance. He was the best, the truest friend I ever had and I loved him almost with a brother's love.— I regarded him for the last two years as giving promise of better abilities than any other young man I ever knew and I feel that in his death, though the great shock fell upon his parents and sister it is truly a heavy blow to his large circle of friends and acquaintances and a loss to the community in general

Since the very commencement of the war, as you all know so well, he was anxious to go, and that high-toned patriotism which induced him to give up his education, his hopes, and above all, the dear ones at home, never for a moment, amid the sorest trials and dange [illegible] him. — He has often told me how much it cost him to say "Good By" to his mother, but I never heard him regret that he ca
A sense of duty brought him into the army and sustained him to the last. — When in camp we were much together, and often some quiet moonlight evening we would stroll off by ourselves an lying on the grass talk for hours. — He was always singularly mod =est about himself and his plans. always more ready to talk of others than himself. — His ambition seemed to be rather for his sister than himself — he generally spoke of it when he received a letter from Lorenda, and quite often read me parts of it. and often spoke of his love for her. and his hopes for her future. — At one time was speaking of the business arrangements which I wished made in case I should die here. and he said laughingly that he had not much property to dispose of. and that in case of his death it would go to buy "sister" an instrument, but he added. I expect to go home and spend it myself. He was never gloomy never low spirited, often said he expected to be wounded but thought he should survive it. — Poor fellow! it was not so to be. — His religious feelings were deep and solemn, he was not inclined to talk about them with any one, but those with whom he was very intimate. I think there was no no one who knew how much he felt on serious subjects so well as myself. and our intimacy in this respect was I believe of a value to us both. — He was always very glad that he became connected with the church before entering the army and often spoke of it. — His manners were very unassuming and he was generous and warm-hearted to a fault; His kindness to Billy Hewitt was very noticeable, and had Billy lived he would never have forgotten it. — In his company, though there were few of his opinions yet his views were respected all and he was a general favorite. His word once given was not broken and though not apt to reprove others for wrongdoing, he could never be led one step beyond what he thought was right.

But what is the use of my telling you what you already know so well, or lengthening my letter in vainly trying to tell all his excellencies! He has gone from us forever and I feel that he a [illegible] blow to me. It is as nothing beside your great bereavement.
Of little use is any sympathy which I can offer for I know that the Holy Comforter is with and that He who is spoken of as "a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief" has strengthened and sustained you in the hour of your affliction, and sanctified that grief which were otherwise too heavy to be borne. — George has indeed gone, and who shall say that it was not for the best? There is for him no more toil and temptation no more dangers by day or sufferings by night
In the spring time of life, with his high hopes, and bright talents
God has taken his own to himself. — Well may we say of him that "he fought a good fight" that he kept the faith". The soldier boy sleeps his last sleep, and in that blessed land where "the wicked cease troubling and the weary are at rest" he has entered upon his reward. We are separated from him, but not long — on the other side there is gathering a noble band, and they are waiting and watching for us. — How soon the Master shall call we know not, let us be that he shall find us also ready. — Within the month I have lost dear friends. George, and Austin Gaylord. My life and health are still spared, for how long God only knows, but if my life is needed I will go as the others have gone freely, willingly for my country's good. — I have learned that George's funeral was on the 26th. I wish that Orin would sometime write me the particulars. And now sympathising from my heart with you all I remain Yours Respectfully Robert [illegible]

JACOB BROWN was born in Charlton, Mass., 1789; came to Stamford when 7 or 8 years of age; entered the army in 1812; was in service in the Florida war, in which he acted as Indian Agent, superintending the removal of 2 or 3 tribes. He was promoted to the rank of Major and served in the Mexican war till his death. He was struck by a bomb-shell while with a few soldiers he was defending the Fort at Matamoras, and survived his wound but 2 or 3 days, during which time he encouraged the soldiers, refusing to surrender till the very last, shaking his head to every demand of the enemy, when the power of speech had failed. "His loss," said Gen. Taylor in a letter to the President, "is irreparable."

First born on record, Jeremiah Tupper, May 2, 1772. Otis Phillips was Town Clerk to 1846, 32 years. First Justice, Oliver Smith, 1786; others, Otis Phillips, 41 years; S. C. Millerd, 20; J. L. Wilmarth, 19, and James Houghton, 12 years. Frist Representative, Jonathan Munger, 1781.

CHURCHES. Among the early settlers of Stamford, there were several belonging to different Baptist churches. Mrs. Lydia Baker, who came to Stamford in 1788, and was present at the organization of the church, gave us in substance the following account of its early history.

Lydia
w/of our Stephen Baker
MILLARD

"When I came to Stamford, there were a number of Baptists in town, and we occasionally had preaching by different ministers. When we had none, we met together, and prayed and exhorted. In 1799, Rev. D. Starks preached at Mr. Stephen Clark's, in Clarksburg, and Dr. Robinson invited him to preach in his house in Stamford. In March he advised the brethren to form a church. They met about the 15th of April, 1799, and called a council; Rev. Peter Worden of Cheshire, attended with several of his brethren. The church was organized, and Rev. Mr. Worden preached from these words:—"Endeavoring to keep the unity of the spirit, in the bond of peace." Rev. Mr. Starks was chosen pastor, and a religious revival followed, so that he baptized from 2 to 13 each month, through the ensuing summer and autumn. After Mr. Starks left us, we had no stated preaching for some time, but were supplied by ministers from different places. Rev's Mattison, Withrell, Leland, Robinson, Dwyer, Bennett, and others, occasionally served this church. In 1810, Rev. Paul Himes was ordained pastor of the church."

Ministers who have served this church as pastors or otherwise, are the following: Aaron Haynes, Henry Cady, W. G. Johnson, Truman Hendry, Merritt House, Ransom O. Dwyer, J. H. Wells, H. Crowley, D. Avery, and A. W. Goodnow. Present number of members 71.

Thos Methodist
Sarg Baker

The first church edifice was erected in 1827, by indivuals of different denominations, and was used as a Union house. It was occupied by the Methodists, Universalists, and Baptists, until 1853, when the last named, relinquishing their claim on the old house, built a new church.

Rev. J. M. Weaver of the Methodist E. church, formed a class here, in June 1832, of 23 members; who belonged to the North Adams M. E. Church, and were supplied with occasional preaching from Adams for about 10 years, when the class by removals and deaths became extinct.

In May, 1847, a class was again organized, consisting of 8 members, who held their connection with the M. E. Church of North Adams. They were supplied with preaching one quarter of the time, by local preachers from North Adams. In May, 1851, the church was organized, and Rev. Angelo Canol was appointed pastor. At its organization the church consisted of 16 members. Ministers: The following have served this church: E. B. Haff, M. B. Mead, J. B. Wood, O. W. Adams, Daniel Ross, and W. D. Hitchcock. During the pastorate of Rev's J. B. Wood and O. W. Adams, the church enjoyed special seasons of revival.—Present number of members, 85, and of probationers, 4. Their house of worship was repaired in 1856.

MANUFACTURERS. Jonathan Brooks, leather; Ira Stroud, Wilbur Cook, Ira Lee, Jeremiah Stone, lumber; C. T. Parker & Co., staves. MERCHANTS: J. W. Weld, and Ja's Houghton. Present number of inhabitants, 833 (1860.)

The inhabitants like most Vermonters, are a plain, hospitable and quiet people, with no great ambition for reforms; kind to friends, with some obstinacy in controversy; exhibiting the stern, rather than the æsthetic qualities of character; are generally farmers, and the village is small.

SUNDERLAND.

BY G. B. BACON, ESQ.

Sunderland, a post town, of 23,040 acres, 6 miles E. of the New York line, was chartered July 30, 1761, to Isaac Searls of West Hoosic, Mass., and 63 others.

The 1st proprietors meeting was held at the house of Asa Alger in Pownal, ~~(N. H.)~~ July 7, 1763; Isaac Searls, Moderator; Geo.

for three years prior to 1828, twice a delegate to Constitutional Conventions, and was appointed Judge of the County Court, and Judge of Probate for several years, and for ten years County Treasurer.

He was long an active and exemplary member of the Baptist Church and was eminently in all respects a true and useful citizen, possessing the confidence and esteem of all. He died deeply lamented Aug. 4, 1855.

Hon. John H. Olin, son of Gideon Olin, was born in Rhode Island Oct. 12, 1772; came to Shaftsbury in his father's family in 1776, and died here June 17, 1860. He was an upright, intelliegent man, and for many years occupied a prominent position in the affairs of the County. He was two years Judge of Probate and eight, from 1817 to 1825, Judge of the County Court. Both his mental and physical powers continued in great vigor to the last. A few days before his death, in his 88th year he visited his daughter in Bennington, and also his old friend Samuel Fay Esq., who still survives, and is a few months the elder.

STAMFORD.

BY REV. A. W. GOODNOW.

Stamford is in the south part of Bennington Co.; 9 miles S. E. of Bennington, and 4 miles N. of North Adams, Mass.; and was chartered by New Hampshire, March 6, 1753, to Elisha Cook, and 55 others, (23,040 acres in 62 shares.) It was again chartered by New Hampshire, under the name of New Stamford, June 9, 1764, to Francis Bernard, Esq., and 65 others, in 72 shares. It retained the latter name until March 31, 1783, when the town "voted, to do business in the name of Stamford, alias New Stamford." It soon adopted its original name altogether.

This town is separated from her sister towns of the State, by natural gigantic fortifications. The Green Mountains biforcating just north of the town, extend the entire length each side. On the east the range continues into Massachusetts, and is called the Hoosic Mountains; on the west the range is rather broken; but continues on through the western part of Massachusetts, under the name of Taconic Mountain. The side of the mountain on the east of the town, presents a beautiful wavy appearance, very similar to so many windrows, ranged side by side. One dome like point, just east of the village, is called Allen's Peak.

The surface of this town is uneaven, and generally, quite as well adapted to grazing as tillage. "Stamford hollow" embraces the most arable portions, which, in many respects, is a valley of rare beauty.

The north branch of the Hoosic river, rises in the north part of the town, flows south, is fed by numerous tributaries, which dash down the mountains on either side, and swell the river considerably before it enters Massachusetts.

There are three natural ponds, in the N.W. part of the town; all situated on very high land. One is called Sucker Pond, in the extreme N. W.; Stamford Pond, S. E. of this, is some smaller; and Mud Pond, in the same vicinity, is quite small.

The names of some hills in town, owe their origin, either to the names of their owners, or to some circumstances connected with their early settlement. Cato, Sherman, and Baker Hill, bear the names respectively of their original owners. Moose Hill is so called, because a moose was once killed there.

The first settler in town, is reported to have been a man by the name of Raymond. He built his cabin against a large rock, 16 feet by 22, about one mile south of the centre, and one half mile west of the mountains, and is said to have lived in town, 2 or 3 years before he knew of their existence; (probably owing to the density of the forests.) Here was baked the first johnny cake, and from the fact of his living againt the rock, he was ever after known by the name of Rock Raymond.

The first Town Meeting on record, was March 14, 1780, when Edward Higly was chosen Moderator; Israel Mead, Town Clerk; Amos Mead, Constable; Edward Higly, Benjamin Tupper, and Israel Mead, Selectmen. This was probably not the first organization; the early records of the town were lost.

The first public road was laid out by Geo. Lamb, Nathan Mead, and Solomon Gleason, May 5, 1777.

The first framed house, was built by Benj. Tupper, in 1782, a little south of the house, now owned by Mr. McNamara.

Nov. 12. 1783, the town voted to build a school house in each district. Josiah Tupper, son of Benj. Tupper, taught school in James Harris' house before a school house was built. Other schools were taught in dwelling houses. The first school house was probably built the following season, as they in 1784 voted to hold town meetings in the school house. It must have been a log house, as the first framed school house was built in 1793.

At this time there was also a log meeting house, standing on the line between Vermont and Massachusetts, in which a Mr. Dean, (Baptist) preached.

The first store was built in 1825, by J. L. Wilmarth, Esq.

The first tavern, known to have been kept in town, was by Wm. Clark.

THE YEAR OF NO SUMMER

"Old accounts describe the cold year, 1816. January was very mild, many people allowed their fires to go out. February was also mild. March from the first to the sixth, was windy, but the rest of the month was lamb-like. April came in warm, but became colder, and by the first of May, the temperature was like that of winter, with plenty of snow and ice. In May the young buds were frozen dead; it formed an inch thick on ponds and streams, and it became too late to raise crops.

June was a very cold month. Frost and ice were common. Almost every green thing was killed, all fruit destroyed. Snow fell 10 inches deep in Vermont, with a three inch fall in the interior of NEW YORK STATE. All summer long the wind blew steadily from the North in blasts laden with ice.

July came in with ice and snow. On July fourth ice as thick as window glass formed throughout New England, NEW YORK, and some parts of Pennsylvania.

August proved the worst of all. There was great privation, and thousands of persons would have perished in this country had it not been for the abundance of fish and game.

In this vicinity, provisions could not be bought. Even that which had been intended for seed was used. Potatoes were peeled so as to leave the eyes in the peeling to save for planting. Many families had no wheat flour for months. Molasses was made from pumpkins , and every known substitute for food was used.

People could not get money , and they dared not fall in debt. The person of a debtor at that time, could be taken and confined in jail, according to a law repealed in 1821 "

Note: What was the reason for this change? A volcano in Indonesia, (Tambora) erupted in 1815 sending spews of ash into the air for three months. It created a band of dust that cirled the globe for one year, closing off the ultrviolet rays of the sun, so necessay for plant growth. The people did not know...or for that matter understand wind, weather or volcanic action can cause global disturbances. Now we know better. 80,000 people died of starvation as the result of the Tambora eruption. It is the WORST RECORDED eruption to cause death in history.

for three years prior to 1828, twice a delegate to Constitutional Conventions, and was appointed Judge of the County Court, and Judge of Probate for several years, and for ten years County Treasurer.

He was long an active and exemplary member of the Baptist Church and was eminently in all respects a true and useful citizen, possessing the confidence and esteem of all. He died deeply lamented Aug. 4, 1855.

Hon. John H. Olin, son of Gideon Olin, was born in Rhode Island Oct. 12, 1772; came to Shaftsbury in his father's family in 1776, and died here June 17, 1860. He was an upright, intelliegent man, and for many years occupied a prominent position in the affairs of the County. He was two years Judge of Probate and eight, from 1817 to 1825, Judge of the County Court. Both his mental and physical powers continued in great vigor to the last. A few days before his death, in his 88th year he visited his daughter in Bennington, and also his old friend Samuel Fay Esq., who still survives, and is a few months the elder.

STAMFORD.

BY REV. A. W. GOODNOW.

Stamford is in the south part of Bennington Co.; 9 miles S. E. of Bennington, and 4 miles N. of North Adams, Mass.; and was chartered by New Hampshire, March 6, 1753, to Elisha Cook, and 55 others, (23,040 acres in 62 shares.) It was again chartered by New Hampshire, under the name of New Stamford, June 9, 1764, to Francis Bernard, Esq., and 65 others, in 72 shares. It retained the latter name until March 31, 1783, when the town "voted, to do business in the name of Stamford, alias New Stamford." It soon adopted its original name altogether.

This town is separated from her sister towns of the State, by natural gigantic fortifications. The Green Mountains biforcating just north of the town, extend the entire length each side. On the east the range continues into Massachusetts, and is called the Hoosic Mountains; on the west the range is rather broken; but continues on through the western part of Massachusetts, under the name of Taconic Mountain. The side of the mountain on the east of the town, presents a beautiful wavy appearance, very similar to so many windrows, ranged side by side. One dome like point, just east of the village, is called Allen's Peak.

The surface of this town is uneaven, and generally, quite as well adapted to grazing as tillage. "Stamford hollow" embraces the most arable portions, which, in many respects, is a valley of rare beauty.

The north branch of the Hoosic river, rises in the north part of the town, flows south, is fed by numerous tributaries, which dash down the mountains on either side, and swell the river considerably before it enters Massachusetts.

There are three natural ponds, in the N.W. part of the town; all situated on very high land. One is called Sucker Pond, in the extreme N. W.; Stamford Pond, S. E. of this, is some smaller; and Mud Pond, in the same vicinity, is quite small.

The names of some hills in town, owe their origin, either to the names of their owners, or to some circumstances connected with their early settlement. Cato, Sherman, and Baker Hill, bear the names respectively of their original owners. Moose Hill is so called, because a moose was once killed there.

The first settler in town, is reported to have been a man by the name of Raymond. He built his cabin against a large rock, 16 feet by 22, about one mile south of the centre, and one half mile west of the mountains, and is said to have lived in town, 2 or 3 years before he knew of their existence; (probably owing to the density of the forests.) Here was baked the first johnny cake, and from the fact of his living againt the rock, he was ever after known by the name of Rock Raymond.

The first Town Meeting on record, was March 14, 1780, when Edward Higly was chosen Moderator; Israel Mead, Town Clerk; Amos Mead, Constable; Edward Higly, Benjamin Tupper, and Israel Mead, Selectmen. This was probably not the first organization; the early records of the town were lost.

The first public road was laid out by Geo. Lamb, Nathan Mead, and Solomon Gleason, May 5, 1777.

The first framed house, was built by Benj. Tupper, in 1782, a little south of the house, now owned by Mr. McNamara.

Nov. 12. 1783, the town voted to build a school house in each district. Josiah Tupper, son of Benj. Tupper, taught school in James Harris' house before a school house was built. Other schools were taught in dwelling houses. The first school house was probably built the following season, as they in 1784 voted to hold town meetings in the school house. It must have been a log house, as the first framed school house was built in 1793.

At this time there was also a log meeting house, standing on the line between Vermont and Massachusetts, in which a Mr. Dean, (Baptist) preached.

The first store was built in 1825, by J. L. Wilmarth, Esq.

The first tavern, known to have been kept in town, was by Wm. Clark.

WM. RAYMOND was in the French and Indian war; came here about the year 1780, and died June 14, 1818, aged 96; being the oldest person deceased in town. His son, ELISHA RAYMOND, served 3 years in the war of the Revolution.

JACOB BROWN was born in Charlton, Mass., 1789; came to Stamford when 7 or 8 years of age; entered the army in 1812; was in service in the Florida war, in which he acted as Indian Agent, superintending the removal of 2 or 3 tribes. He was promoted to the rank of Major and served in the Mexican war till his death. He was struck by a bomb-shell while with a few soldiers he was defending the Fort at Matamoras, and survived his wound but 2 or 3 days, during which time he encouraged the soldiers, refusing to surrender till the very last, shaking his head to every demand of the enemy, when the power of speech had failed. "His loss," said Gen. Taylor in a letter to the President, "is irreparable."

First born on record, Jeremiah Tupper, May 2, 1772. Otis Phillips was Town Clerk to 1846, 32 years. First Justice, Oliver Smith, 1786; others, Otis Phillips, 41 years; S. C. Millerd, 20; J. L. Wilmarth, 19, and James Houghton, 12 years. Frist Representative, Jonathan Munger, 1781.

CHURCHES. Among the early settlers of Stamford, there were several belonging to different Baptist churches. Mrs. Lydia Baker, who came to Stamford in 1788, and was present at the organization of the church, gave us in substance the following account of its early history.

"When I came to Stamford, there were a number of Baptists in town, and we occasionally had preaching by different ministers. When we had none, we met together, and prayed and exhorted. In 1799, Rev. D. Starks preached at Mr. Stephen Clark's, in Clarksburg, and Dr. Robinson invited him to preach in his house in Stamford. In March he advised the brethren to form a church. They met about the 15th of April, 1799, and called a council; Rev. Peter Worden of Cheshire, attended with several of his brethren. The church was organized, and Rev. Mr. Worden preached from these words:—"Endeavoring to keep the unity of the spirit, in the bond of peace." Rev. Mr. Starks was chosen pastor, and a religious revival followed, so that he baptized from 2 to 13 each month, through the ensuing summer and autumn. After Mr. Starks left us, we had no stated preaching for some time, but were supplied by ministers from different places. Rev's Mattison, Withrell, Leland, Robinson, Dwyer, Bennett, and others, occasionally served this church. In 1810, Rev. Paul Himes was ordained pastor of the church."

Ministers who have served this church as pastors or otherwise, are the following: Aaron Haynes, Henry Cady, W. G. Johnson, Truman Hendry, Merritt House, Ransom O. Dwyer, J. H. Wells, H. Crowley, D. Avery, and A. W. Goodnow. Present number of members 71.

This next says Baker

The first church edifice was erected in 1827, by indivuals of different denominations, and was used as a Union house. It was occupied by the Methodists, Universalists, and Baptists, until 1853, when the last named, relinquishing their claim on the old house, built a new church.

Rev. J. M. Weaver of the Methodist E. church, formed a class here, in June 1832, of 23 members; who belonged to the North Adams M. E. Church, and were supplied with occasional preaching from Adams for about 10 years, when the class by removals and deaths became extinct.

In May, 1847, a class was again organized, consisting of 8 members, who held their connection with the M. E. Church of North Adams. They were supplied with preaching one quarter of the time, by local preachers from North Adams. In May, 1851, the church was organized, and Rev. Angelo Canol was appointed pastor. At its organization the church consisted of 16 members. Ministers: The following have served this church: E. B. Haff, M. B. Mead, J. B. Wood, O. W. Adams, Daniel Ross, and W. D. Hitchcock. During the pastorate of Rev's J. B. Wood and O. W. Adams, the church enjoyed special seasons of revival.—Present number of members, 85, and of probationers, 4. Their house of worship was repaired in 1856.

MANUFACTURERS. Jonathan Brooks, leather; Ira Stroud, Wilbur Cook, Ira Lee, Jeremiah Stone, lumber; C. T. Parker & Co., staves. MERCHANTS: J. W. Weld, and Ja's Houghton. Present number of inhabitants, 833 (1860.)

The inhabitants like most Vermonters, are a plain, hospitable and quiet people, with no great ambition for reforms; kind to friends, with some obstinacy in controversy; exhibiting the stern, rather than the æsthetic qualities of character; are generally farmers, and the village is small.

ENTERING
STAMFORD

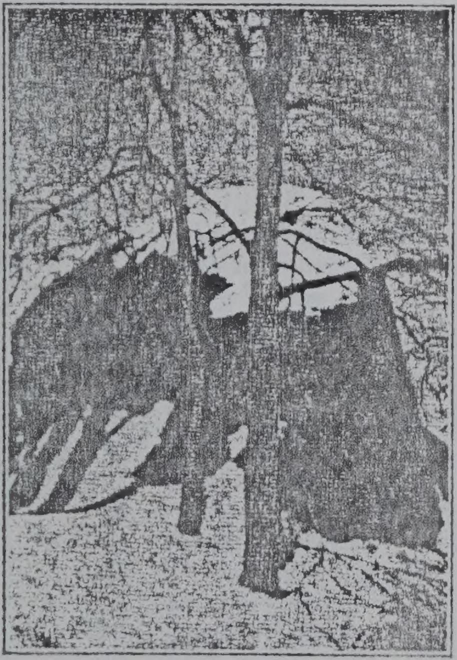
A plan of about 1770, outlining the northern boundary of the Province of Massachusetts Bay, shows a road from Fort Massachusetts running through Stamford, Cumberland and Halifax; then instead of continuing to Fort Dummer, turning back into Massachusetts and crossing the town of Colrain.

The Pioneers

The list of "proprietors" who signed the first charter contains family names notable in the Colonies at that time. Mathers, Dwights, Allens, Warners, Kingsleys and others were active in colonial affairs. But many who entered into that contract with Governor Wentworth probably never hewed timbers or turned furrows in Stamford. They sold their allotments to others more eager to venture into this northern wilderness.

Josiah Raymond signed both the first and the second charter, or "re-grant", and tradition tells us that he built the first cabin against the granite boulder which now is a corner stone between the properties of Eugene Bishop and Albert Foster. Tradition says further that on this rock was baked Stamford's first johnny cake. Josiah was nicknamed "Rock" Raymond, and tradition says that when he built, the forests in the valley were so heavy that the eastern mountain range could not be seen from his rock. William Raymond, probably a kinsman, came to town about 1780. He served in the French and Indian War, and died June 14, 1818, the oldest person deceased up to that time. His son Elisha, who lived on what is now the Whittaker place on the East Road, served for three years in the War for Independence.

Other first settlers came in by ox team, on horse back and on foot. "Squire" Millard brought his family from Rehoboth, Mass. His grandson, Samuel Millard, grandfather of George Flood, wrote, "My grandfather came to Stamford in March of the year 1784 The children made the journey on foot, driving the cattle which were shod to enable them to keep their footing on the icy ground. The family lived in a little hut by the river. At the time of his death Squire Millard occupied a house which stood on what is now the main road across from the little Millard cemetery."



RAYMOND ROCK
which sheltered the First Cabin

The first birth to be recorded was of Jeremiah Tupper, May 2, 1722.

Mrs. John Stroud, who lived to be 102 years old, said of her husband's family: "They came by ox team and did not stop until they found a suitable spot." This was where the old Stroud house still stands on the East Road.

Several names found in Stamford's land records before 1800, and still continuing here, are Brown, Blood, Harris, Lee, Lesure and Whitney. And we find now in residence descendents of the Brattons, Cooks, Millards, Strouds, Wheelers, Wilburs, Bangs and Oakes.

Stamford contributed men not only to the Continental Army fighting under Washington, but to the militia forces of the Vermont republic, necessary as a frontier guard against New York. The Vermont Assembly, at a session in Bennington in October, 1780, determined to reorganize its military forces "and place the same upon a substantial war footing." For this purpose the Board of War was authorized to call out the militia for nine month's service, afterward increased to eleven months. To maintain the same in the field on the frontier the Assembly laid a provision tax on the several towns. Ten towns in Bennington County were subject to this tax. Stamford's allotment was 750 lbs. of flour, 250 lbs. of beef, 125 lbs. of salt pork, 24 bushels of corn and 12 bushels of rye.

In the United States of America

Vermont joined the Union of States in 1791, urged on by a national Congress which took steps to arbitrate the differences with Massachusetts and New Hampshire, and especially New York, whose legislature had ordered the capture and hanging of Ethan Allen and his associates.

At this time, according to the census of 1790, the population of Stamford consisted of 48 families, numbering 69 males over 16 years of age, 73 males under 16, and females of all ages, 137; a grand total of 279 souls. At that time the total number of dwellings in neighboring North Adams was eleven. The census of Stamford deserves reprinting. Families were taken in order, and the figure preceding the name of the head of the family indicates the number of the house on the town map. The figures following each name indicate first the number of males in the house, including the father; second the number of males under sixteen years; third, the females of all ages including the mother.

for three years prior to 1828, twice a delegate to Constitutional Conventions, and was appointed Judge of the County Court, and Judge of Probate for several years, and for ten years County Treasurer.

He was long an active and exemplary member of the Baptist Church and was eminently in all respects a true and useful citizen, possessing the confidence and esteem of all. He died deeply lamented Aug. 4, 1855.

Hon. John H. Olin, son of Gideon Olin, was born in Rhode Island Oct. 12, 1772; came to Shaftsbury in his father's family in 1776, and died here June 17, 1860. He was an upright, intelligent man, and for many years occupied a prominent position in the affairs of the County. He was two years Judge of Probate and eight, from 1817 to 1825, Judge of the County Court. Both his mental and physical powers continued in great vigor to the last. A few days before his death, in his 88th year he visited his daughter in Bennington, and also his old friend Samuel Fay Esq., who still survives, and is a few months the elder.

STAMFORD. VT

BY REV. A. W. GOODNOW.

Stamford is in the south part of Bennington Co.; 9 miles S. E. of Bennington, and 4 miles N. of North Adams, Mass.; and was chartered by New Hampshire, March 6, 1753, to Elisha Cook, and 55 others, (23,040 acres in 62 shares.) It was again chartered by New Hampshire, under the name of New Stamford, June 9, 1764, to Francis Bernard, Esq., and 65 others, in 72 shares. It retained the latter name until March 31, 1783, when the town "voted, to do business in the name of Stamford, alias New Stamford." It soon adopted its original name altogether.

This town is separated from her sister towns of the State, by natural gigantic fortifications. The Green Mountains biforcating just north of the town, extend the entire length each side. On the east the range continues into Massachusetts, and is called the Hoosic Mountains; on the west the range is rather broken; but continues on through the western part of Massachusetts, under the name of Taconic Mountain. The side of the mountain on the east of the town, presents a beautiful wavy appearance, very similar to so many windrows, ranged side by side. One dome like point, just east of the village, is called Allen's Peak.

The surface of this town is uneaven, and generally, quite as well adapted to grazing as tillage. "Stamford hollow" embraces the most arable portions, which, in many respects, is a valley of rare beauty.

The north branch of the Hoosic river, rises in the north part of the town, flows south, is fed by numerous tributaries, which dash down the mountains on either side, and swell the river considerably before it enters Massachusetts.

There are three natural ponds, in the N.W. part of the town; all situated on very high land. One is called Sucker Pond, in the extreme N. W.; Stamford Pond, S. E. of this, is some smaller; and Mud Pond, in the same vicinity, is quite small.

The names of some hills in town, owe their origin, either to the names of their owners, or to some circumstances connected with their early settlement. Cato, Sherman, and Baker Hill, bear the names respectively of their original owners. Moose Hill is so called, because a moose was once killed there.

The first settler in town, is reported to have been a man by the name of Raymond. He built his cabin against a large rock, 16 feet by 22, about one mile south of the centre, and one half mile west of the mountains, and is said to have lived in town, 2 or 3 years before he knew of their existence; (probably owing to the density of the forests.) Here was baked the first johnny cake, and from the fact of his living againt the rock, he was ever after known by the name of Rock Raymond.

The first Town Meeting on record, was March 14, 1780, when Edward Higly was chosen Moderator; Israel Mead, Town Clerk; Amos Mead, Constable; Edward Higly, Benjamin Tupper, and Israel Mead, Selectmen. This was probably not the first organization; the early records of the town were lost.

The first public road was laid out by Geo. Lamb, Nathan Mead, and Solomon Gleason, May 5, 1777.

The first framed house, was built by Benj. Tupper, in 1782, a little south of the house, now owned by Mr. McNamara.

Nov. 12. 1783, the town voted to build a school house in each district. Josiah Tupper, son of Benj. Tupper, taught school in James Harris' house before a school house was built. Other schools were taught in dwelling houses. The first school house was probably built the following season, as they in 1784 voted to hold town meetings in the school house. It must have been a log house, as the first framed school house was built in 1793.

At this time there was also a log meeting house, standing on the line between Vermont and Massachusetts, in which a Mr. Dean, (Baptist) preached.

Squire Millard Land bounded

The first store was built in 1825, by J. L. Wilmarth, Esq.

The first tavern, known to have been kept in town, was by Wm. Clark.

Jacob Brown was born in Charlton, Mass., 1789; came to Stamford when 7 or 8 years of age; entered the army in 1812; was in service in the Florida war, in which he acted as Indian Agent, superintending the removal of 2 or 3 tribes. He was promoted to the rank of Major and served in the Mexican war till his death. He was struck by a bomb-shell while with a few soldiers he was defending the Fort at Matamoras, and survived his wound but 2 or 3 days, during which time he encouraged the soldiers, refusing to surrender till the very last, shaking his head to every demand of the enemy, when the power of speech had failed. "His loss," said Gen. Taylor in a letter to the President, "is irreparable."

Churches. Among the early settlers of Stamford, there were several belonging to different Baptist churches. Mrs. Lydia Baker, who came to Stamford in 1788, and was present at the organization of the church, gave us in substance the following account of its early history.

"When I came to Stamford, there were a number of Baptists in town, and we occasionally had preaching by different ministers. When we had none, we met together, and prayed and exhorted. In 1799, Rev. D. Starks preached at Mr. Stephen Clark's, in Clarksburg, and Dr. Robinson invited him to preach in his house in Stamford. In March he advised the brethren to form a church. They met about the 15th of April, 1799, and called a council; Rev. Peter Worden of Cheshire, attended with several of his brethren. The church was organized, and Rev. Mr. Worden preached from these words:—"Endeavoring to keep the unity of the spirit, in the bond of peace." Rev. Mr. Starks was chosen pastor, and a religious revival followed, so that he baptized from 2 to 13 each month, through the ensuing summer and autumn. After Mr. Starks left us, we had no stated preaching for some time, but were supplied by ministers from different places. Rev's Mattison, Withrell, Leland, Robinson, Dwyer, Bennett, and others, occasionally served this church. In 1810, Rev. Paul Himes was ordained pastor of the church."

Stephen C Millard s/o James 6

Ministers who have served this church as pastors or otherwise, are the following: Aaron Haynes, Henry Cady, W. G. Johnson, Truman Hendry, Merritt House, Ransom O. Dwyer, J. H. Wells, H. Crowley, D. Avery, and A. W. Goodnow. Present number of members 71.

The first church edifice was erected in 1827, by indivuals of different denominations, and was used as a Union house. It was occupied by the Methodists, Universalists, and Baptists, until 1853, when the last named, relinquishing their claim on the old house, built a new church.

Rev. J. M. Weaver of the Methodist E. church, formed a class here, in June 1832, of 23 members; who belonged to the North Adams M. E. Church, and were supplied with occasional preaching from Adams for about 10 years, when the class by removals and deaths became extinct.

In May, 1847, a class was again organized, consisting of 8 members, who held their connection with the M. E. Church of North Adams. They were supplied with preaching one quarter of the time, by local preachers from North Adams. In May, 1851, the church was organized, and Rev. Angelo Canol was appointed pastor. At its organization the church consisted of 16 members. Ministers: The following have served this church: E. B. Haff, M. B. Mead, J. B. Wood, O. W. Adams, Daniel Ross, and W. D. Hitchcock. During the pastorate of Rev's J. B. Wood and O. W. Adams, the church enjoyed special seasons of revival.—Present number of members, 85, and of probationers, 4. Their house of worship was repaired in 1856.

Manufacturers. Jonathan Brooks, leather; Ira Stroud, Wilbur Cook, Ira Lea, Jeremiah Stone, lumber; C. T. Parker & Co., staves. Merchants: J. W. Weld, and Ja's Houghton. Present number of inhabitants, 833 (1860.)

The inhabitants like most Vermonters, are a plain, hospitable and quiet people, with no great ambition for reforms; kind to friends, with some obstinacy in controversy; exhibiting the stern, rather than the æsthetic qualities of character; are generally farmers, and the village is small.
